An Affair of Honor Between Two Youthful Bloods.

How High German Circles Came Near Being Deeply Stirred.

An Unpleasantness of Long Existence Results in an Engagement to Have It Out—The Proposed Meeting of Otto C. Goerner and Julius Rombauer—Training for the Event—Mr. Goerner Fails to Appear and Disappoints a Select Circle of Friends—Cause of the Bad Feeling—Statements of the Principals.

A more disappointed and disgusted lot it would be hard to find than a group of about twenty swells who were clustered about a nineteen-foot prize ring in a warehouse in the southern part of the city last evening. They had come to see an affair of honor between two young bloods settled by a fight to the finish. The principals in the affair were Julius Rombauer, a nephew of Judge Rombauer, and buyer from A. Krickhaus & Co., and Otto C. Goerner, employed at Newcomb Bros. Both move in the very best circles of German society, and belong to old and respected German families. The trouble between them has existed for a year. It originated last summer at an excursion given by the Germania Club, the swell German organization of the city, of which both Rombauer and Goerner are members. The excursion was to Montesano Springs, and a quarrel arose between the two above-named young men over a dice-box. The lie was exchanged and Goerner wanted to fight Rombauer forthwith, but the latter declined, stating that he did not think it gentlemanly to fight before ladies. Although associating with the same people and having the same circle of acquaintances and friends, the young men have never spoken to each other since then, though they have done considerable talking about each other. Goerner appeared to be and mutual friends concluded it would be a funny spectacle to bring the two together, as neither knew the first principle of the fistic art. Everything they said derogatory of each other, and considerably more, too, was faithfully carried from one to the other by their near and dear friends, until finally Goerner could contain his wrath no longer, and said nothing short of Rombauer's blood would satisfy him. An attempt was made to get up a duel between them (in which blank cartridges would have been used had it occurred), but both thought too precious well of their lives, and even the bloodthirsty Goerner was perfectly satisfied with a fistic encounter. But trouble was experienced even in arranging a meeting of this sort, as Rombauer thought it incompatible with his position as a gentleman. The parties who had determined to bring about a meeting then saw that it would be necessary to let some ladies into the secret, and they did not hesitate to do so. Three or four of Rombauer's intimate lady friends were informed of the scheme, and one evening when he was in their company, one of the arch-conspirators approached the group and told the intended victim that Goerner had been speaking most disgracefully about him, and that as a friend of his (Rombauer's) he (the arch-conspirator) felt it his bounden duty to inform him of Goerner's conduct, and to tell him that if he wished to any longer retain the respect of his fellow-man he must fight the party who had been traducing his fair name. The ladies all coincided in the views expressed and told Rombauer that it was the only course left open to him as a gentlemen to pursue.

THIS ADVICE OF THE LADIES

settled matters, and Rombauer announced his willingness to meet Goerner. When the latter was informed of this he immediately sent Rombauer a challenge to fight, and it was promptly accepted. Goerner selected a well-known business man for his second, while Rombauer named a prominent brewer. A leading member of the grain corner of the Merchant's Exchange was agreed on for referee and a gentleman of a legal turn of mind was made time-keeper. A warehouse in the southern part of the city was selected as the place of meeting, and it was agreed that the fight should be with four-ounce gloves and to a finish, the new London prize-ring rules to govern. Only a few intimate friends were to be present, and each principal was to have a physician in attendance to dress the injuries that were to be inflicted. These arrangements were perfected a fortnight ago, and both men immediately went into training under the directions of their respective seconds, both of whom are clever sparrers. The brewer confined his man's diet to a wienerwurst and a couple of pretzels taken three times a day, and told him that under no circumstances must he drink over two glasses of beer a day, while he most positively forbade him taking water or any other liquid. The merchant pursued a different course with his man. He limited him to cheese and crackers and strictly forbade him drinking anything except a tablespoonful of water three times a day with each meal. Both trainers had their men up at 4 o'clock every morning and made them run ten miles before breakfast, the trainers leading the way over the course on horseback. When the unfortunates got home in the evening from work, and had taken their meagre supper, they were given a two-hours lesson in sparring, their seconds bracing up their courage all the while by telling them what wonderful progress they were making, and how much better each was than the other.

ROMBAUER WAS QUIET

and had very little to say, while Goerner was continuously talking of how he would knock his man out, and offering to bet that Rombauer would not show up. So extremely anxious was Goerner to do his man up that he did not want to use gloves, but wanted to fight with his bare knuckles, and then he would always argue that no real man would submit to be called a liar without whipping the man who called him it, and Rombauer had used that vile epithet to him a year ago. Monday he wrote Rombauer a note informing him that he wanted to fight with bare knuckles. Rombauer did not like the idea of having his face disfigured, but said that the matter was all in his second's hands and he would agree to anything arranged by him. Yesterday at noon Goerner telegraphed him that the fight was to be with bare knuckles, and that there was to be a large party of gentlemen present to witness it. He told him to be on hand at 8:15 o'clock in the evening, as the fight would then take place. Shortly before 6 o'clock last evening Goerner called on his second and again urged that the fight be with bare knuckles, as he wanted to knock his man out in the first round. He was told that Rombauer would no doubt agree to fight him that way, and then he wanted to bet that his rival would not show up. Being informed that there was no question about Rombauer being on hand, Goerner left for supper promising to return immediately. Rombauer put in an appearance with his second before 8 o'clock, but although the crowd waited around the nineteen-foot ring that had been laid out until after 11 o'clock, the fire-eating Goerner failed to show up, and they left a sick and disgusted lot.

OTTO C. GOERNER

is a clerk in Newcomb Bros., on Broadway near Olive. He is a somewhat athletic young man of 23 years, 5 feet 8 inches high, wears a pompadour, and a light mustache. He said to a reporter this morning: "An arrangement had been made between my second, Mr. Kinsler, a druggist, at Second Carondelet and Lafayette avenues, and Jos. Griesedieck, second for Mr. Rombauer, for a fight last night. I don't know where it was to be; the seconds arranged that. It was to settle a difficulty of long standing between Mr. Rombauer and myself. I could not go to the meeting, although I had promised to be there. My family moved yesterday and my mother over-exerted herself. In consequence she was ill last evening, and needed my attention. I went to Emile Kinsler's store early in the evening, and told his clerk it would be impossible for me to fight. Later I tried to telephone the party but could not get a connection. All parties understand that now; they know I did not stay away, because I was afraid."

"Who issued the challenge?"

"There was no challenge. Friends of both parties arranged it. They knew of the bad feeling between us, and fixed up a sparring match. It was to be fought with bare knuckles, but that is against the law, and so we agreed to wear gloves."

"Will the meeting take place?"

"I have told my second I am willing to meet Rombauer any time, and I guess a meeting will be arranged."

JULIUS ROMBAUER,

is employed by A. Krickhaus & Co., 412 South Main street. He is 24 years old, as tall as his would-be antagonist, more quiet in manner, and possibly more powerful. He said the fight was forced upon him. He had been worked upon by friends until he had consented to the meeting. He had called Mr. Goerner a liar and if the young man wanted satisfaction he could get it, but Mr. Rombauer objected to giving it to him in a ring. He had gone to the place of meeting, but Goerner did not appear. The latter had told everybody he was willing to fight, wanted to fight, and yet did not appear. Whether there would still be a meeting depended upon the decision of Mr. Rombauer's second.

BUCKEYE BRAG.

Ohio Men in New York on Financial and Political Missions.

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH.

NEW YORK, June 30.—Ohio men were thick in New York yesterday. Aong others who were here were ex-Gov. Foster, Gen. J. S. Robinson, Secretary of State; Auditor-of-State Emil Keisewetter, Attorney-General J. A. Kohler, Judge Geo. K. Nash, Gen. A. T. Wykoff, ex-Congressman C. N. Lamison, Carey A. Wilson of Newark and B. F. Goodrich of Akron. Messrs. Robinson, Kohler and Keisewetter are here to secure the money on a temporary loan of $500,000, which was authorized by the State Legislature to meet the interest on canal bonds that have been running since 1830, but were refunded in 1880. The Democratic Administration under Gov. Hoadly left the State Treasury bankrupt, and there were no funds with which to meet nearly $500,000 interest on those bonds. The Legislature passed the necessary bill for the loan, which is to run for a year only, but the State officials found it impossible to secure the money because of the struggle over the State Senate and its doubtful issue. A suit was brought in the Supreme Court to contest the constitutionality of the measure and has been favorably decided. On Monday, the gentlemen who are here in this matter, placed the bonds with Simon, Borg & Co. at 3½ per cent. The money has been deposited in the American Exchange Bank to meet the interest on the canal bonds which is due on July 1. The matter has been arranged just in time to save the credit of the State. Gov. Foster's mission is with reference to his natural gas discovery in the vicinity of Fostoria, and also the Missouri Land and Railroad enterprise of which he is manager. Judge Nash and Gen. Wykoff are here on financial matters relating to the Cleveland & Marietta Railroad. Messrs. Lamison and Wilson were laying before the East Tennessee people the results of their investigation in Arkansas of the proposed lines of extension of that railroad. Dr. Goodrich and his family are to sail for Europe to-day.

The talk among the Republicans of this party with reference to politics in Ohio is of the most favorable character. Attorney-General Kohler said that the Republican majority in the State will increase steadily in the next three or four years. The Cincinnati Enquirer, which has always been a power in the Democratic campaigns because of its liberality in the publication of Republican news, has recently assumed a Bourbon cast, and its present rabid Democracy is having the effect of strengthening the Republican party. The liquor men have decided quite generally to accept the tax law passed by the Republican Legislature, with a prospect of taking the temperance issue out of party politics. It was the liquor vote, on the one hand and the Prohibitionists on the other hand, that gave the Republicans their temporary check for a number of years.

Gen. Robinson says that the Republicans of the State are indignant beyond measure that the United States Senate Committee has decided not to make an investigation of Senator Payne's election. This indignation extends, he declares, as well to a large number of Democrats, who desire to have the methods of the Payne Managers disclosed and discountenanced.

A DEADLY DUEL.

Two Texas Cattlemen Settle a Dispute with Pistols.

GATESVILLE, Tex., June 30.—James Cooper and Joseph VanWinkle fought an informal duel with revolvers yesterday on Brown Creek in Coryell County. Both were fatally wounded. Cooper was shot in the head and died in a few minutes. VanWinkle was shot through the bowels and has since died. Cooper and VanWinkle were mortal enemies, having quarrelled about a year ago over some cattle. Yesterday they met on Brown Creek, and after some hot words they agreed to fight to the death. They measured off the ground, and each with his watch in hand waited for the moment agreed upon for opening fire. At the appointed time two shots rang out almost simultaneously; Cooper had received his fatal wound but VanWinkle was not scratched. Another round was fired and VanWinkle fell with a bullet in his breast. The firing attracted some herders about a mile distant and they cared for the wounded man until he died.

A Brooklyn Book-Keeper's Claim to a Big Estate in California.

NEW YORK, June 30.—T. W. Pierce of 262 Fifth avenue, Brooklyn, a book-keeper, who, for some time, has been a claimant to the estate of T. H. Blythe, who died in California three years ago, leaving an estate said to be worth $8,000,000, has just received letters from his counsel in San Francisco which make it appear that he is likely to obtain the entire property. The contest is between Mr. Pierce and an alleged daughter and other relatives of the dead millionaire.

STRICKEN BY STORM.

Great Distress in Several Parishes in Louisiana—An Appeal for Aid.

BATON ROUGE, La., June 30.—Gov. McEnery has issued a proclamation reciting information received of great distress resulting from severe storms and inundations in portions of the Parishes of Rapids, Grant and Catahoula. The crops have been totally destroyed, cattle and hogs drowned, and the soil in many cases washed away to such an extent that it will be impossible to raise crops of any kind this year. The Governor therefore asks all charitably disposed persons in the State to send contributions of provisions to these distressed people.

Wife-Beaters Fined.

There was very little interest in the First District Police Court this morning. George Eichinger and Conrad Thuma, wife-beaters, were fined $50 and $15 respectively. John Walsh and Lizzie Waters were fined $5 each for disturbing the peace.

Reilly Released.

CHICAGO, June 30.—Charles Reilly, who was arrested for being the author of the Canal street fire, in which eight persons lost their lives, succeeded in establishing an alibi and has been discharged by the Grand-jury.

Gen. Geo. F. Alford of Dalas, Tex., arrived in the city yesterday on his way to Europe for the summer.

"MY CLERK"

THE WAY THAT SURVEYOR LANCASTER REFERS TO APPRAISER HARRIGAN.

The Complete Story of the Fight Over the Appraisership Spoils—Dark Lantern Dick's Desire to Distribute the Pap—Maj. Harrigan's Objection to Interference With His Official Affairs.

A short time ago the POST-DISPATCH, in a telegram from Washington, gave to the public the first intimation of the bitter feeling which existed between Surveyor of the Port Lancaster and Appraiser Lawrence Harrigan. As was stated at the time, this unpleasant condition of affairs was the outcome of quarrel between the two Federal office-holders over the distribution of "pap" in the office of Appraiser. Surveyor Lancaster, with an utter disregard for the customs and traditions of his office and an ungentlemanly desire to control the universe, sought in a bulldozing manner to arrogate to himself the power and authority of both surveyor and appraiser and to deprive Maj. Harrigan some of the few prerogatives of his position. He denied the Major's right to name the clerks in the Appraiser's office and expressed his intention of usurping that privilege himself. Maj. Harrigan objected to such a proceeding and refused to appoint Mr. Lancaster's nominations. From that time out it was generally understood that the gentlemen had a difference, and their friends stepped in and endeavored to bring about a reconciliation and an understanding, but without success, and the matter still remains in that condition. Mr. Lancaster will not approve of Maj. Harrigan's recommendations and Maj. Harrigan will not entertain the names of the men suggested by Mr. Lancaster.

THESE FACTS,

in a general way, were published in the POST-DISPATCH, and the day after their publication Mr. Lancaster denied, in an interview, that there was any truth in them. Now, in support of the original publication and in proof of the fact that Mr. Lancaster is either greatly mistaken or that he willfully perverted the truth when he uttered his denial, the following details of the difference between him and Maj. Harrigan are published for the first time.

It appears that when Mr. Lancaster was appointed Surveyor of the Port he had very likely given promises of positions to a great many more of his friends than he had places to give. Being afterwards informed of his power over the appointments of the Appraiser he resolved, as his actions have since shown, to use it to provide for some of the malcontents. To do this he resorted to his characteristic dark methods.

shortly after his appointment sent to Mr. Lancaster the name of Mr. Florence White as the gentleman whom he had selected to be his Chief Clerk. To his surprise Mr. Lancaster refused to give the appointment of Mr. White his approval, alleging as his reason that Mr. White was not conversant with the duties which he would have to perform as the Appraiser's Chief Clerk, and although he had not the slightest objection to him on any other grounds, he considered his inexperience sufficient reason why he should not sanction his appointment. Mr. Harrigan thought he saw in Lancaster's refusal of Mr. White an intention to make an attempt to influence his appointments, and was highly indignant, but concluded not to suggest the name of any one else for oppointment until he saw what Lancaster's next move was likely to be. As he expected Mr. Lancaster suggested the names of several persons to him whose appointment would receive his approval. Maj. Harrigan made up his mind, however, that if Mr. Lancaster would not confirm the parties whom he selected he would retaliate by refusing to appoint those whom the Surveyor suggested.

THUS THE MATTER STOOD

for a while, honors being even between them, until finally Mr. Harrigan determined to ascertain whether or not Mr. Lancaster was usurping a right which he did not legally possess.

About this time Congressman Glover sent Secretary Manning the name of F. B. Ryan for an appointment to the position of Chief Clerk of the Appraiser's office. Secretary Manning immediately referred Mr. Glover's letter to Mr. Lancaster, who has the papers in his possession at present.

The affair created some stir at Washington, and Senator Cockrell is said to have expressed the opinion when he heard of Lancaster's action that the latter was treating Maj. Harrigan unfair, and should not attempt to dictate to him whom he should appoint. Senator Vest is said, however, to have backed up Lancaster and given him the assurance that he was legally right in acting as he had done.

A NUMBER OF LOCAL POLITICIANS, who did not wish to see a conflict of authority arise between the two Government officers, called on Mr. Lancaster several days ago in the interest of peace and harmony, their purpose being to persuade him if possible that he was acting in an unfair, not to say ungentlemanly, manner toward Mr. Harrigan. A mutual friend of the two officials opened the interview by saying:

"Lancaster, what is all this trouble between you and Harrigan about anyway?"

"There is no trouble between us that I know of," answered the Surveyor, "except that Mr. Harrigan does not fully understand his position."

"What is his position?"

"My clerk."

"Your clerk! Why he was appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate. I don't know what you mean; I don't understand," said Mr. Lancaster's astonished interviewer.

"Don't you? Well, probably you will understand this," and Mr. Lancaster opened a drawer and drew forth Mr. Glover's recommendation of Mr. Ryan, which had been referred to him by Secretary Manning, and also the latter's letter, and handed them over to his interviewer for inspection with a triumphant smile. After perusing them the gentleman agreed with Lancaster that his treatment of Harrigan was likely to cause dissension in the party and that he should readily confirm whoever the latter should suggest, providing they were not especially objectionable to him, but Lancaster couldn't see it in that light and the interview terminated.

WHEN APPROACHED

upon the subject this morning by a POST-DISPATCH reporter Maj. Harrigan reluctantly admitted that there was some difference of opinion between Mr. Lancaster and himself about the appointment of his clerks.

"Will you appoint the men recommended by Mr. Lancaster?"

After a moment's thought Maj. Harrigan said: "I do not propose to take anybody's judgment but my own in appointing my chief clerk. The position is one of great responsibility and upon the proper discharge of its duties depend, to a great degree, the proper conduct of my office. Very naturally, I do not care to be responsible for any man whom I do not know personally, and of whose honesty and integrity I am not fully assured, therefore you can understand why I hesitate to accept another man's judgment in the matter."

From this it is clear that Maj. Harrigan does not propose to allow Mr. Lancaster to make the appointments in the Appraiser's office.

Mr. Lancaster declined to discuss the subject and referred the reporter to Maj. Harrigan.

Four Men from a Capsized Schooner Drowned While Swimming to Shore.

BOSTON, June 30.—The schooner yacht Pelican of East Boston capsized yesterday while on the way to Marblehead to witness the yacht race. The six men on board crawled upon the keel when the boat turned bottom up. After a few minutes the boat pitched suddenly and sank. The six men started to swim ashore. After keeping together for about a mile one suddenly threw up his arms, and crying, "Oh! God; I can't stand it," he sank. The others dared not look around, but swam desperately on. Another and another dropped behind and sank, until only two remained afloat. The last two were about to give up in despair, when two men in a dory discovered them and dragged them, nearly dead, into the boat. The names of the lost are Thomas Crane, John McGeevy, Hugh Donohue and William Curran.

AN INDIRECT APPEAL TO AMERICANS TO HELP THE GLADSTONIAN LIBERALS.

Salisbury Replies to the Premier—Parnell Hopeful—Mr. Gladstone Seeking Rest at Hawarden—Conservatives Elected at Liverpool—Explosion in the Commons—An American Garden Party at Constantinople—Foreign News.

Special Cablegram to the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, June 30.—It is a painful fact that the cause of Gladstonian Liberalism, that is of home rule, will suffer severely in the coming elections from secession to the enemy of the Whig money bags, and the consequent absolute inability of the party managers to find the necessary funds to prosecute the cause. Last night an eminent Gladstonian said to me: "I would not have Gladstone to draw on the generosity of Irish Americans, but think if the American admirers of Gladstone knew the straits his supporters are in they would be not disinclined to help him. The Parnellites need money, but not more than we."

One rich American of Scotch birth, well known here, has sent a subscription to the Gladstonian candidates' fund, but this is being diverted from the intentions of the donar by the person to whom it was entrusted. Gladstone has admirers in America, many of them wealthy. A round sum, transmitted by cable as proof of their affection and confidence, would be most welcome from America, now that he is thus deserted by his old friends in England. I am speaking not without authority. If anything is done, however, it must be done almost in a few hours."

England.

SALISBURY REPLIES TO GLADSTONE.

LONDON, June 30.—Lord Salisbury, in his speech last night, said he wished to repel Mr. Gladstone's suggestion that Lord Carnarvon had done anything not consistent with the most scrupulous honor. Lord Carnarvon informed him (Salisbury) of what had passed in the interview with Mr. Parnell, the information exactly coinciding with Carnarvon's statement in the House of Lords. He (Salisbury) told Carnarvon in the interview with him that his objection was so strong that even if the Conservatives adopted a policy in favor of a Parliament in Dublin he would refuse to join the Ministry. He defied Mr. Parnell to give the slightest proofs of his slanderous assertions regarding Lord Randolph Churchill, who had never varied in unchanging hostility to the view of an Irish Legislature. There was no ground to say that Carnavon resigned because he was pledged to other than the Government's policy. His (Salisbury's) statements were supported by his fourteen colleagues. He criticized Mr. Gladstone's "habit of leaving loop-holes through which to escape from every position he assumed." Mr. Gladstone, he said, had tried to palm a miserable travesty of history upon his Liverpool audiences. Mr. Gladstone's letter, offering to assist the Conservative Government in settling the Irish question, did not mention home rule. He (Salisbury) after meditation, regarded it as another loop-hole. Mr. Gladstone now confessed that he had not said a word against home rule for fifteen years, yet he allowed his colleagues to pledge themselves to the hilt in defense of a united Parliament. The only way in which the question could be settled was by continuing the process of union until the Irish welcomed it as the Scotch did. Mr. Gladstone had taught many splendid things, but what he taught most was that England could be squeezed when Ireland chose.

GLADSTONE TO MEIKLEJOHN.

Mr. Gladstone has sent a dispatch to Mr. Meiklejohn, a Parliamentary candidate at Glasgow, wishing success to "the cause upon which even Lord Salisbury smiled until he was beaten in the elections." The Premier has also sent a flattering letter to Sir George Errington, the Liberal candidate for the Newton division at Lancashire.

PARNELL HOPEFUL.

Mr. Parnell, in a speech at Chester last night, said that although Mr. Gladstone had not given the Irish everything they wanted, he believed the Premier's proposals would lead to a final settlement of the Irish question. Mr. Parnell repeated in substance his former statement concerning his interview with Lord Carnarvon and held that that statement had never been contradicted.

The Irish Protestant Home-Rule Association has issued a manifesto in support of Mr. Gladstone.

The Bishop of Ripon, delivering an address at Leeds, warmly defended the action of clergymen taking part in the political conflict. He held that the clergy had a right to inculcate a higher conception of public duty than that resulting from mere party cries.

THE EARL OF DERBY'S OBJECTIONS.

The Earl of Derby, speaking at Liverpool last night, said he objected to Mr. Gladstone's Irish scheme because he believed that after a few stormy years it would so weaken England's hold upon Ireland as to leave only the dismal choice of separation or reconquest.

HARRISON TO THE ELECTORS.

Mr. Frederick Harrison, a Gladstonian, will contest the seat for London University against Sir John Lubbock. Mr. Harrison, in his address to the electors, says he was never a blind follower of Mr. Gladstone, but that he believes that the Premier alone of all the statesmen of the present generation has the power to propound a consistent pattern for the government of Ireland and close the struggle.

Sir John Bennett is the Gladstonian candidate in Northwiltshire.

DILKE DISAPPOINTED.

LONDON, June 30.—The appeal of Sir Charles Dilke and Mrs. Crawford against the decision of the divorce court, refusing them permission to appear as witnesses in their own behalf in the Crawford-Dilke divorce case as re-opened by the intervention of the Queen's proctor, was to-day dismissed. A request for leave to appeal from this last decision to the House of Lords was also refused.

THE PREMIER HOARSE.

Mr. Gladstone is suffering from hoarseness. He has gone to Hawarden to rest.

EXPLOSION IN THE COMMONS.

An explosion occurred yesterday in the House of Commons. Everything was done by the officers in charge of the building to conceal the fact. It leaked out, however, but in false forms and the most exaggerating and sensational rumors about Irish plots and dynamite outrages got into circulation. The truth was made known to-day. The explosion resulted from pent-up sewer gas. A workman who happened to be in the vicinity at the time was injured by the explosion. The occurrence is generally accepted as a fair exhibition of the extremely bad sanitary condition of the Parliament buildings.

THE OXFORD CONVOCATION.

The convocation at Oxford to-day was unusually crowded. Honorary degrees were conferred on Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes and John Bright. Both gentlemen were received with demonstrations amounting to ovations. The students hissed every mention of Mr. Gladstone's name and cheered for Lord Salisbury and Lord Randolph Churchill.

THE LIVERPOOL ELECTION.

LIVERPOOL, June 30.—The elections for members of Parliament will take place here on Friday. The day will consequently be observed as a holiday in the markets.

CONSERVATIVES ELECTED.

Baron H. DeWormes, Mr. E. Whitely and Mr. T. O. Roydon, conservative candidates for the East Toxteth, Everton and West Toxteth divisions of Liverpool, respectively, were to-day elected to the House of Commons, their seats being conceded to them because neither was contested. The three gentlemen, therefore, enjoy the distinction of being the first members elected to the new Parliament.

Turkey.

MR. HEAP'S GARDEN PARTY.

CONSTANTINOPLE, June 30.—Mr. Heap, Secretary of the United States Legation, gave a garden party last evening in honor of Admiral Franklin, United States Navy, who will stay here until July 5. Among the guests were the foreign diplomatic representatives and the elite of the city. The festivities were marred by the drowning of two Italians, who belonged to the sailors' band of the Kearsarge, through the capsizing of a boat conveying the band from the shore to the Kearsarge.

Ireland.

A FARMER MURDERED.

DUBLIN, June 30.—A farmer named Meere was murdered on the Hillway, near his residence in Caffamere, last night.

The Balkans.

A SENSATIONAL ARTICLE.

LONDON, June 30.—The St. Petersburg Journal's article accusing Prince Alexander of violating the decisions of Europe, and the Porte of displaying little concern, has caused a sensation in Berlin and Vienna. The newspapers of these capitals express indignation at what they call Russia's determination to maintain a ferment in the Balkans.

The Dominion.

FOUND IN THE BAY.

TORONTO, June 30.—The body of H. M. Hampton, of Cleveland, O., was found in the bay here yesterday. From letters found on the body it is supposed the deceased was a commission merchant out of work. A letter from his wife in Cleveland, found in his pocket, asked why he did not write, and said she was almost crazy to know where he was.

Switzerland.

PRINCE NAPOLEON.

LONDON, June 30.—Prince Napoleon has arrived at Luzerne, Switzerland.

HOME AGAIN.

A Young Lady Visits a Girl Friend and Is Reported Missing.

Mr. Louis Rask lives at 2926 Franklin avenue. On the 20th inst. his wife's sister, Miss Emma Schiele, a pretty little girl of 16, came from her home at Highland, Ill., to pay the family a visit. Yesterday morning the young lady left the house to visit some friends, and had not returned when her brother-in-law came home from business last night. A call was made at the police sub-station and a description of the missing girl was read to the patrolmen at roll call. She was described as being about 5 feet tall, with an oval face, gray eyes and dark brown hair. When she left home she was dressed in white and wore a black hat trimmed with red. All night long the family were in anxiety and doubt concerning the young lady. This morning the brother went in search of her and the sister went to the Four Courts to see Chief Huebler and stimulate the hunt for the young lady in that quarter. About 10 o'clock Miss Emma accompanied by two young lady friends returned to the house. She had passed the night with Miss Mabel Lortz, at that young lady's home. The Lortz family are very estimable people and previously had lived near the Schieles' in their country home at Highland. When Emma went to visit her friend yesterday she had told her sister of her intention, but the sister had misunderstood her. The joy of the family was great upon the return of the young lady, for whom they had been imagining all manner of fearful fates.

GIVEN A REHEARING.

The Supreme Court Will Go Over the Grayor Murder Case.

Word was received here to-day that the State Supreme Court, which recently affirmed the decision in the case of Robert Grayor, convicted of murder in the first degree, and sentenced him to hang, had granted a rehearing in the case. As they have done this, it is almost certain that the case will now be reversed and a new trial granted Grayor. He killed a room-mate and fellow workman at Reilly & Wolfert's stable on Broadway with a wagon stake in 1883. When told of the action of the Court to-day Grayor, who is a short, chunky negro, wore his usual smile, and received the news very cooly, just as he had the news that he would have to hang. He said he knew his attorney, Mr. Ottofy, would do all in his power for him, and felt that if the Supreme Court heard the facts in the case they would not refuse him a new trial. He, of course, felt good over the news.

COAL COMBINATION.

The Western Anthracite Coal Association Discusses the Situation.

BUFFALO, N. Y., June 30.—The Western Anthracite Coal Association met here yesterday and was largely attended by representatives from the East and West. No change was made in prices, and most of the time was spent in discussing the situation. Local dissensions cause much trouble to the trade in general, and a committee sent to St. Louis to settle a quarrel among the dealers there last month report the success of their mission. The question of allotments was postponed until a later meeting.

BELLEVILLE NEWS.

The last session of the present term of court was held to-day. Judge Snyder granted a divorce and alimony to Mrs. Martin, wife of E. B. Martin, an East St. Louis barber. Mrs. Hammel of East St. Louis was also granted a divorce. Mike Behn, an East St. Louis gambler, failed to appear and his bond of $200 was declared forfeited.

The annual convention of the St. Clair Teachers' Institute will be held at Liederkranz Hall on July 5.

Caught in Machinery.

Foster Abbott, aged 25 years, and living with his parents at the northeast corner of Broadway and Penrose street, was caught in the machinery and instantly killed at the planing-mill of Cameron & Co., at Bremen avenue and the railway track. Young Abbott was adjusting a belt to a pully when his clothes caught in the wheel and he was drawn in. The left arm was torn from its socket and his leg wrenched from the knee. The remains were conveyed to his home and the Coroner was notified.

Carondelet Jottings.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Schremnys leave for Iowa in a few days.

The Carondelet Lodge 144, I. O. O. F., met Monday evening and elected officers.

SHELBYVILLE, Ill., June 30.—The Mexican Veteran Association of Illinois has named August 10 and 11 as the time, and this city as the place, for holding its fourteenth annual reunion. At the request of the President, Col. Ferris, foreman of the Vandalia, a meeting has been called here to make arrangements.

Assignee's Sale.

The last remnants of the once prosperous Peckham Iron Company, consisting of iron ore, charcoal and uncollected book accounts, were sold out by auction on the Court-house steps to-day under assignee's sale. The whole sale did not amount to more than $1,400, the principal buyers being A. McDonald & Bro., Smith & Co. and C. G. Greeley.

The Arkansas Democrats.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., June 30.—The Democratic State Convention met at noon. Nearly every county was represented. J. M. Hewitt of Lee was elected permanent President and Sam Black of Monroe, Vice-President. After appointing committees the convention adjourned till 3 p. m.

Mr. Jno. Matthews will take a ten-day vacation, beginning to-morrow, the first he has had in ten years. He will spend the most of his time along the Merrimac River in fishing.

STILL TURBULENT.

THE STRIKING LAKE SHORE SWITCHMEN DETERMINED TO HOLD OUT.

Threats of Violence—A Bitter Fight to Be Carried On—The Transfer Business Now the Objective Point of the Strikers' Efforts—A Switch Train Mobbed by Packing-House Employes—The Union Carpenters' Fight on Non-Union Men—Labor News.

CHICAGO, June 30.—It seems evident from the events of yesterday afternoon and evening that the Lake Shore strikers are determined to make a long and bitter fight. Many of the railroad employes sympathize with the strikers and express the belief that the strike has only begun, and that the company will not be able to hold out with the necessary force of deputies as long as its enemies will be able to pester them with the annoyances of yesterday afternoon. On the other hand, the officials of the road declare their determination to go straight forward on the present line, and fight the battle to the end if it takes a thousand policemen to accomplish a final and complete victory. The whole strength of the strikers is now directed toward the transfer business, especially to thwart the attempts of the Lake Shore Company to deliver freight to other lines, less attention being paid to the reception of trains from connecting roads, probably for the reason that obstruction cannot be offered in that direction without directly interfering with the traffic of roads with which the strikers claim to be at peace. The shot fired by the Pinkerton guard at the man who derailed two cars by throwing a switch under a moving train last evening caused great excitement among the switchmen and their friends, and many threats were made. A morning paper says that in the crowds at Packerstown last night there were dozens who openly declared the Lake Shore should not deliver another train to any line in those yards, and that if it was attempted to-day blood would be shed. One man said: "That loafer who fired into this crowd will go to jail to-night, and if he shows his nose in these parts again I'll make a pepper-box out of his carcass. I will teach these fellows with their big guns that there are crack shooters in these parts and before another twenty-four hours there will be dead Pinkerton men on these tracks, or I'm a liar."

The sympathizers with the strikers are very outspoken. Geo. Dalton, the Pinkerton man who did the shooting, was arrested, but afterward released on bail. He was nearly mobbed before aid reached him after the firing, although his shot went wide of its mark.

GREAT ANXIETY.

The usual two car-loads of Pinkerton men arrived at Root street shortly after 7 o'clock this morning and business was immediately started by the Lake Shore Company. The entire Pinkerton force, with the exception of a dozen men, are now armed with rifles and a guard is sent out with every train and accompanies it to Colehour. The trouble at the stock yards last evening, while not of a serious nature in itself is looked upon by the officials of the company as indication of a new source of danger. The employes of the packing-houses, who number in the neighborhood of ten thousand, are in thorough sympathy with the strikers, and as they now leave work at 4:30 o'clock in the afternoon, their presence in the neighborhood of work is thought to be somewhat menacing to the company's interest. The switchmen employed by the other roads in the stock yards are not trusted implicity by the Lake Shore officials, who are of the opinion that any one of them would embrace any opportunity of turning a switch under a moving train. From Chicago to Millers Station, Indiana, a distance of thirty miles, the fences, switch-houses, and telegraph poles are decorated with posters, in which the Lake Shore Company offer $500 reward for the arrest and conviction of any one violating that section of the statutes which prohibits interference with the property of a railroad company by any outsider. The strikers laugh at the notice, and think it absurd to suppose that any of their number would turn informer for the sake of any reward. While there seems no liklihood of any trouble around Chicago to-day except, perhaps, at the stock yards, there is considerable anxiety manifested on both sides as to the probable action to be taken by the Lake Shore switchmen, especially at other points. Mr. Cavanaugh, the Yardmaster of the Toledo yards, has been in Chicago since the commencement of the strike and yesterday received dispatches from some of his trusted men at home saying that his presence was required there without delay, as a strike seemed imminent. He left for Toledo last night.

MOBBED BY PACKING-HOUSE MEN.

Engine 468 escorted by thirty special policemen, at 11 o'clock this morning, was sent into the stock-yards. On arriving near the packing-houses, intense excitement prevailed. Every window of the packing-houses was crowded with workmen who yelled offensive epithets at the guards. It was feared that there would be trouble when the workmen went to dinner. At 12 o'clock the Lake Shore engine which was attached to a tool car and caboose was stopped behind the Chicago Packing and Provision Company's slaughter house, by a train of cars in front. As the packing-house whistles blew the signal for the dinner hour, a crowd of at least 2,000 employes gathered in the vicinity. The windows of the packing-house immediately beside the train were thronged with the workmen, who began to yell at the officers, and in a few minutes the wildest excitement prevailed. Some offal was thrown from the windows and struck one of the three Pinkerton men who were on top of the car. This was the signal for a shower of stones and clubs, which were thrown from the windows and roofs of the building. Officer Mike Begley was struck on the jaw by one of the clubs and was seriously injured. The Pinkerton men raised their rifles to shoot, but were restrained by a Deputy Sheriff. A shot at that moment would undoubtedly have precipitated a serious riot. The crowd was finally broken up when the whistle summoned them back to work at 12:30 o'clock. The train was started up and moved behind Armour and Murphy's packing-houses amid a shower of missles which did no damage.

Two Pinkerton officers, George Edmunds and a man known as "Harry," stationed at the Long Bridge, half a mile from South Chicago, heard a shot a few hundred yards up the track at 9:30 o'clock last night. Harry went up to see what the trouble was, leaving Edmunds to guard the bridge. Three men were standing on the track and when Harry ordered them to move on they attacked him. He drew his revolver and fired, one shot which made a hole through the right leg of one of the fellows, just below the knee. The name of the injured man could not be learned, as his companions carried him away immediately.

Hiring New Men.

TOLEDO, O., June 30.—The Lake Shore switchmen are all quiet here; the company is hiring men to go to Chicago to take the places of the strikers, and so far has obtained about fifty who will go to-night.

CHICAGO'S CARPENTERS.

The Intimidation of Non-Union Men Very General—Several Encounters.

CHICAGO, June 30.—It has been learned that the attacks on non-union carpenters, who were working ten hours, was more general than at first known, and it is said that it is part of a plan arranged by the Carpenters' Union to force these men to work eight hours or not at all. None of the assaults made yesterday were successful, however. Besides the affairs mentioned in yesterday's dispatches, trouble occurred on the South Side, at Twenty-ninth street and Indiana avenue, at Thirty-first street and Vernon avenue and at Thirty-first street and South Park avenue. The workmen were attacked with much the same results as upon the West Side. At Twenty-ninth street and Indiana avenue an old man 65 years old was thrown into a cellar, and another named Edmundson was severely beaten. The carpenters working ten hours on a new building at the corner of Indiana and Kingsbury streets were assaulted by about half a dozen rioters. Several workmen were hit with stones and bricks and some of them were severely hurt. The Lake View police, late yesterday afternoon, arrested eight men on the charge of intimidating the carpenters at work in the village. At a meeting of the Chicago Carpenter's Union, Sunday, a committee of twenty-four was appointed to co-operate with the branch of the union at Lake View. They succeeded in persuading a number of ten-hour non-union men to quit work on Monday, and yesterday they continued their operations. In the afternoon eight of them went to the new church in course of construction at the corner of Mariana street and Sheffield avenue, where ten carpenters were at work. The committeemen argued with the workmen for a while and then proceeded to exercise physical force. A patrol wagon promptly appeared and four of the "persuaders" were jailed. At the corner of Oakdale avenue and Herndon street is a new building. Here a number of the committeemen were discovered using clubs. They fled at the sight of the police, but four were overtaken. The charge preferred against these men is intimidation. They are all Germans. They failed to procure bail and will come before Justice Chapman to-day.

MERCK'S DISAPPEARANCE.

The Police Puzzled About the Moberly Grocer's Freak.

The whereabouts of August Merck, the Moberly grocer and barber who disappeared in this city, are still a mystery. He left his home nearly two weeks ago for St. Louis, and paid bills here amounting to $40, leaving him in possession of $260. He started Tuesday evening of last week to take the 7:40 train for Belleville to visit his father-in-law, but instead of going there went to the City Hosptel, Fourth street and Clark avenue, arriving there at a late hour, and, the proprietor says, in an intoxicated condition. He left next morning, but returned again the following evening, or rather Thursday morning, for he did not recah the hotel until 1 o'clock a.m. He was again very drunk, and after breakfast Thursday morning left at 9:30 o'clock and has not since returned. Friday morning Theodore Wattensfiel, a friend of the missing man, was despatched here by Merck's wife to make inquiries regarding him. He called at the City Hotel, but Merck was already gone. A telegram was sent to Mrs. Merck's father in Belleville, telling him to go to Moberly, his daughter being in a very bad frame of mind over her husband's disappearance.

The police here were notified regarding the case, and the entire forces were given a description of the man, who is 35 yerrs of age, 5 feet 6 inches tall, 130 pounds in weight and dark complexioned. This morning Chief of Detectives O'Neill assigned Officers Viehle and Moberly of his force on the case, but as yet the missing man's whereabouts remain a mystery. His wife fears he has met with foul play, but the police believe he is on a spree.

MONEY.

NEW YORK, June 30, 11 a. m.—The stock market, reacting from the slump last evening, opened firm this morning, first prices being generally from ⅛@¼ per cent above yesterday's closing figures, while Pacific Mail was a conspicuous exception, opening down ¾ per cent. The improvement continued throughout the general list, further advances of ⅛@⅜ per cent being made, while Pacific Mail and Union Pacific were decidedly weak in the early trading, each losing ¾ per cent, the former afterward regained this loss and something additional, but the latter only part, and still shows a decline. Towards 11 a. m. there was a slight yielding in the general list, but at 11 o'clock the market is dull and steady. There was active trading in Lackawanna, Pacific Mail, Union Pacific and St. Paul, with the remainder dull.

NEW YORK, June 30, noon.—Money on call is easy at 1½@2; bar silver, 97⅞. The stock market after 11 a. m. continued dull for the general list, and the active stocks of the first hour joined the others in dullness. There was no movement in prices whatever, and the only item of interest was the quoting of New York Central ex. div., after which it moved a small fraction, which was afterward lost. The market continued slow till noon, and at 12 o'clock is dull and steady, at a slight advance over opening prices. ### St. Louis Markets.

FORENOON SESSION—CLOSING 1 P. M.

Wheat—Chicago wired this morning that the amount on passage to Europe showed a decrease of 3,000,000 bu. This was enough of itself to put up the markets, for it was the largest decrease that had taken place in this ocean wheat for a year and more past. The cables that came in showed a steadier feeling and Continental buying of cargoes off-coast was reported by London through private cables noted little disposition to buy, but even this slight improvement, taken in conjunction with the heavy dullness, was cheering, and encouraged the bulls to go in and take on some wheat. Chicago, which is the bull headquarters, went up fully 1c, the other markets responding by advancing also, though St. Louis did so rather reluctently and the buying here was still chiefly by shorts. Receipts here were small and the stock showed another decrease, which tends to hold sellers in check. Those who were banking on the large decrease in amount on passage received what is known in racing parlance as a "dump," when the official figures came in. The wheat and flour headed for the United Kingdom showed 380,000 bu decrease, while that bound for the Continent was 80,000 bu larger. An estimate on Liverpool stocks of wheat and flour came in that gave an increase over the amount held on April 1, which disturbed the equanimity of the bulls greatly, and with the great change in amount on passage weakened the markets. This increase in stock was a great surprise to all and a sore disappointment to the friends of wheat. It has been thought there would be a large decrease. The Millers' Gazette and Corn Trade Journal (London), June 15, states that from information received it appears that the Indian shipments are expected to fall off for a time, as the former contracts, which gave rise to the recent shipments, have been fulfilled. It is pretty certain that the stocks in the United Kingdom on the 1st of September will be very moderate. This will be confirmed by glancing at the account of foreign and home-grown supplies of wheat, which have thus far been 15,456,480 busheles less than in the previous season. Late in the session most weakness was developed, all the latest cables coming in reporting dullness and weakness in the markets on the other side and no export demand of consequence turning up in this country, while all the markets gave evidence of depression. The close here was ⅛@¼c above yesterday. June was settled up at 77c; July sold at 74½c and late 74⅛c the best bid; August at 75½c to 75c, closing at 75c; September at 77⅜c to 76⅞c; October at 78¾c to 88⅜c; year at 74¼c, and late 74c asked. The market for spot No. 2 red was dull, as millers would not buy. Holders of "old" claimed that they could sell at 79½c, but car lots regular were offered at 76¾c, with 75c the best bid drawn out. No. 3 red 70c asked, no bid; No. 4, 65c asked; rejected, 50c in C., 52c in St. L. Early in the day a lot of about 4,000 sacks choice new sold by sample at 77½c, but later the market dropped down and 75c was the best price asked for the best lots.

Corn was easier, as other markets were lower. A good many orders were here to change July over to August, but little of this swapping could be done as there were too few buyers of July and not enough sellers of August. The consequence was that July declined ¼c, selling at 31¼c early down to 31c, while August sold ⅛c better at 32½c. September brought ⅛c better price at 33⅞c, until late, when it fell off to 33¾c. October sold ¼c lower at 34¾c. Year was offered at 31¼c, with 31c bid. July No. 2 white sold at 34¼c, and August at 34¾c. The market for spot grades was firm, and No. 3 sold considerably higher, but offerings were still small, and the demand rather moderate. No. 2, 31c in U., 31¾@31⅞c in St. L.; No. 3, 29c in M., 28½@29½c in St. L. 28¼c asked for C. & V; No. 4, 25⅝c in St. L., 25½c asked for M. 26¼c bid for U; No. 2 white, 35c in A.; 35½c for spot, 36c bid for A. & U, 34¼c asked regular; No. 3 do 32c bid this side; No. grade 20½c bid St. L.

Oats—Futures were entirely nominal, as not a trade was made and little disposition shown by any one to get there as a buyer or seller. July had 24½c and September 24¼c bid; August offered at 24½c, bid 24¼c. Spot grades were easier and dull, with little demand from any source. No. 2, 27c in E. and U., 29¼c in M. and bid for St. L.; No. 3, 26c bid E. side.

Rye continues neglected; No. 2 was offered at 55c, with 52c bid for it.

Rye Flour—Quiet at $3.40@3.50 per bbl.

Cornmeal—Weaker at $1.95@2 for city on orders del.; pearl meal and hominy, $2.30@2.40; grits, $2.40@2.50 del.

Bran—Dull; sacked, 44c at mill and bulk, 37c at country points.

Hay—For large-baled and loose-pressed fancy timothy there was a fair local demand, but loose qualities very dull and prairie quiet and easy. Market limits were: This side—Prairie, $8@8.50 for prime to fancy; mixed timothy, $5@8.50; prime to fancy timothy, $8.50@13. East track stock sells about $2@3 per ton below the above rates.

Provisions—Francis Bros.' private wire reported the Chicago market as opening "steady at yesterday's prices. Market partly influenced by firmness in wheat. Some longs taking profits. Jones a free buyer of September pork ribs. "Later" active and firm. Goodbuying of ribs and pork. Lard very strong, leading firms who have been free buyers for past two months are taking everything offered. The market has absorbed everything that was offered, both long and short, and there is very little for sale. The clique brokers have bought lard, and brokers have bought pork freely, which is supposed to be for Armour. Instead of showing any signs of weakness the market seems gathering strength every day." Trading was not so free nor anywhere near as large in the home market, and a much quieter state of affairs prevailed. Prices were steady and the feeling firm enough, but the demand did not appear to be here. Nothing was done in up country meats; winter c'ribs to arrive East side and summer do for September delivery this side were offered at 6.17½c and f. but none sold. Standard mess pork sold in a small way at $10.25. Prime steam lard was quotable at 6c. Boxed dry salt shoulders sold at 5¼c; longs at 6.05c; c'ribs at 6-10c, and shorts at 6.20c; loose f. o. b. on cash orders, shoulders, 5¼c; longs, 5.95c; c'ribs, 6.05c and shorts 6.20c. Country bacon—Shoulders, 4¾@5c; hams, 7@8c; sides, 4@6¼c; skippery less. S. c. shoulders, 6¼c, and hams, 11@12½c. Breakfast bacon, 7¾@9c. Beef—Family, $10@13 ℔ bbl, according to brand; on orders higher, $6@7 ℔ ½-bbl; dried, 12@13c; selected, 15c ℔ ℔; smoked tongues, [illegible] ℔ doz. Tallow—Prime to strictly prime, [illegible] in oil barrels; No. 2, [illegible] in irregular packages ¼c less. Grease—Brown and yellow, [illegible]; white, [illegible]; straight lots held higher. Salt—Domestic, $1@1.25 [illegible] as in size or lot. Ground alum, [illegible] small way higher.

Highwines unchanged at $1.13 [illegible] St. Louis, Cincinnati and Peoria; $1.14 [illegible] Chicago.

Lead was quiet. Refined was offered at $4.6[illegible] and one seller had what he called a "nibble," but the fish did not take the hook for no sales resulted. Latest trade in chemical hard was at $4.65 East side and quotable at $4.62½ this side.

The City of Natchez of the famous Anchor Line, Capt. Bixby in command, sails at 5 o'clock this afternoon for the Crescent City and all intermediate points.

Under the skillful manipulations of Col. A. J. Brown, the Mattie Belle has been dressed in a new coat of paint, inside and out, from kelson to roof, and now looks like a daisy.

The Minnie Herman, a small boat, coming down from the Lower Missouri ran aground at Eagle Island this morning. It is understood that she is to enter the Lower Missouri River.

Remember the reliable Calhoun for the Illinois River at 4 o'clock to-day from the foot of Olive street. She gives through bills to Chicago. She brought down 6,000 sacks of grain.

It is said that Mr. Ruble, a rich farmer opposite Gondola, on the Ohio, has an invention that will increase the speed of steamboats to thirty miles an hour. He has patented his invention and is now constructing a trial boat at Carrsville.

The classic Hudson arrived from Evansville with eighty-five cabin passengers, most of them round trippers, and twenty-seven hogsheads tobacco, 10,000 feet lumber and over 4,000 sacks of new wheat. She pulls out on her return this afternoon at 5 o'clock, sharp, with Capt. Ellison on the roof and Ed. Anchutz in the office.

AMUSEMENTS TO-NIGHT.

UHRIG'S CAVE—The Mascot.
SIEGE OF PARIS—Thirteenth and Washington avenue.

IT is rather hard on the President of the United States that he should be called on to examine personally into the merits of individual pensions, but he certainly does the work thoroughly. In the long list of vetoes of pension bills he has not objected to one without good reasons.

SECRETARY MANNING thinks that CLEVELAND'S election was a vindication of the Home-Rule principle. This looks like a rather far-fetched idea; but if Mr. GLADSTONE is right in affirming that Home Rule is "a question of classes against the masses," then there may be some ground for Mr. MANNING'S view.

THE mackerel this season are sticking so close to the Canadian shore that the United States fishermen have no chance at them without passing the three-mile limit. Thus the need of a suitable reciprocity treaty between Canada and the United States is made evident by the fish in their swimming, if not by the stars in their courses.

THE Texas Republicans will nominate a full State ticket this summer, although the Democratic majority is now 100,000 and steadily growing. Under the circumstances the Republicans ought to make a very clean campaign record, as there appears to be no special inducement for them to stray from the path of rectitude and virtue.

THE retiring Republican Postmaster of Kirksville, Mo., has been presented with a non-partisan gold-headed cane by the appreciative citizens of that town. It is hoped that this will become the fashionable way of treating offensive partisans who take compulsory leave of office. It tends to keep them in a good humor, and whatever helps to assuage the soreness of a "grand bounce" should be encouraged in the name of humanity and brotherly love.

MR. HEPBURN of Iowa seems to be under the impression that the President should have allowed the fraudulent pension steals to pass because the amounts involved were insignificant. Mr. HEPBURN'S able fellow-Republicans in the Senate are of the opinion that the land-grant steals and railroad-bond steals should be allowed to pass because the amounts are so large that vast interests would be injured by enforcing the rights of the Government. The ingenuity of man can invent no form of a swindle which Republican ingenuity cannot defend.

A REPUBLICAN paper, more candid than most of them, affirms that negroes "have "no right to vote the Democratic ticket "under any circumstances." This is a frank confession of what has been the Republican view in reference to the negro, though Republicans have never had the frankness or hardihood to declare it through their journals or platforms. This spirit of fierce proscription has animated the whole Republican policy in dealing with the negro, and helps to explain why it is that so many negroes are now voting the Democratic ticket.

THE New York Herald is now the recognized organ of the nomadic royalty of Europe, and its Mackay-Bennett cable discription of the departure of the banished Princes from France is written with fervid and tumultuous enthusiasm. Its correspondent, who is thought to be a member of the Orleans family, refers to the Comte de Paris as "the King," and evidently believes in an early restoration of the monarchy. Mr. BENNETT, the naval proprietor of the Herald, has doubtless imbibed a partiality for what is royal and noble; and this may, perhaps, be put down as one result of his romantic cruises in foreign waters.

THE Globe-Democrat presents a striking instance of the improvement of the negroes in morality and enlightenment when it cites the fact that "every Atlantic and "Gulf State from Virginia to Texas, except "Georgia and Texas, cast their electoral "votes for the Republican Presidential "ticket in 1872, and only three of them did "so in 1876, and none of them have done so "since that time." This is a strong argument in favor of the view that the negro is capable of continuous progress and improvement if given a fair opportunity. The Southern negroes become Democrats as they begin to become educated and to acquire property. Since the war Republican ascendency has meant public theft and spoliation in the Southern States, no matter what it has meant elsewhere. Thrifty and sensible negroes know that they, not less than the whites, need good government and public order, and they are wise to uphold the party which has promised and given them these necessary things.

THE Sonneschein case will come up this evening before the Shaare-Emeth Congregation for final decision, but there is a much larger congregation which will be deeply interested in the result. Liberalism in belief is the marked feature of religious life in this country to-day. It is a development which is steadily breaking down old barriers and sectarian lines, bringing believers closer to each other and strengthening true charity and human kindliness. In this movement Dr. SONNESCHEIN has been a conspicuous figure, and so far as the published evidence goes there is nothing further charged against him than that he attempted to find out how near he stood in faith to the nearest of the Christian forms of belief. Instead of being an offense this will be counted rather as a merit by the impartial world. Although the old ages of persecution have vanished, there is not so great an excess of charity between opposing religions that we should punish any one who tried to increase it, and although the steadfastness of the Jews in clinging to their faith compels the admiration of mankind, they would forfeit none of that admiration if it were discovered that the majority of them were guilty of being as liberal as the distinguished St. Louis rabbi is known to be.

THE Comte de Paris is making a good run in England.

WANTED—Some one to pour oil on the troubled WATERS.

DAN MANNING is regaining health and imbibing treason at the Virginia Springs.

THE Confederate debt makes rather a poor substitute for the robust "bloody shirt."

THE steamship-subsidy business will make excellent protoplasm for campaign oratory.

BEN. BUTLER, the horny-handed laboring man, makes $100,000 a year from his law practice.

THE exact status of the Panama Canal will doubtless be a matter for posterity to determine.

"WE were not all drunk." This is the luminous vindication of the House of Delegates.

THE members of the House of Delegates are at liberty to abuse the POST-DISPATCH, but they will not be allowed to quit reading it.

WHEN the Bavarian Regent took the prescribed oath, cries of "hoch!" filled the air. It is strange that the crowd didn't call for beer.

THE METROPOLITAN PRESS.

What the Editors of the New York Journals Are Saying This Morning.

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH.

NEW YORK, June 30.—The WORLD says: "The New Hampshire Democratic State Convention yesterday nominated Thomas Cogswell for Governor. The Convention congratulated the country on its return to Democractic rule and warmly endorsed the Administration. It is pleasant to find such sturdy and happy Democracy in New Hampshire, although the State has been hopelessly Republican ever since the Republican party was established."

THE SUN.

The Sun says: "The best pledge the Democrats in Congress could give the country of the sincerity of their profession during fifteen years of Republican misrule would be to make Pan-Electric statesmanship forever odious within the party as well as without. Short-sighted indeed is the course which a narrow partisan policy suggests under such circumstances as these. The attempt to cover up, to conceal, to whitewash, to exonerate will be a confession that the party is not worthy to exercise the power with which the people have entrusted it. It will be confession, and confession is suicide."

THE TIMES.

The Times says: "The valiant Senators who have declared from time to time that they would remain in Washington all summer and block the wheels of the Government rather than abandon the subsidy amendment to the post-office appropriation have concluded that they cannot afford to carry out their threat. The Senate conferees have formally receded from their insistence on the amendment, and it has been stricken out. We shall now see these Senators go on the stump in the fall elections to explain that the reason why we have not a large and profitable trade with our Southern neighbors is that the rascally Democrats refused to sanction the subsidy. But the taxpayers, who would have had to supply the money and who have not the slightest reason to believe that the trade would have been forthcoming, will listen to this explanation with indifference."

THE TRIBUNE.

The Tribune says: "The Pan-Electric investigation has been more thorough than the most sanguine friends of clean and honest government expected it would be. The committee was not considered a strong one at the outset and, while the resolutions adopted by the House were broad and exhaustive, it was feared that the scope of the inquiry would be narrowed for partisan effect. Since the Administration had become involved during its first year in one of the most disgraceful scandals ever known in American public life, it was natural to suppose that the majority of the committee, in the interest of the party which had not been in power for twenty-four years, would deal superficially with the subject and not conduct an exhaustive, far-reaching investigation. It was expected that the Democratic members would sum up the case in a pettifogging spirit, and make the best possible plea for the prominent officials and statesmen implicated in this scandal. This Mr. Hale has done with very poor grace, while dissenting from the wholesale 'vindication' prepared by his colleagues. But the evidence has been collected with fairness and painstaking care, and there can be no ground for dissatisfaction on the part of advocates of good government with the results of the inquiry. Reputable journals of both parties united in the demand for a thorough investigation. It has been had. The evidence is before Congress and the country. On that evidence the Pan-Electric type of speculative statesmanship stands convicted before the bar of public opinion. Special pleas and partisan defences are of no avail."

THE CIVIL COURTS.

EVENINGS FROM HOME AND ABUSE OF A WIFE'S CHURCH.

Grounds for Divorce in Mrs. Lou Carruthers' Petition Filed To-Day—An Editor Remanded to the Custody of the Sheriff in the Wayne County Contempt Case—Decision on a Press Privilege—The Johnson Divorce Trouble—A Verdict Upset.

Mrs. Lou E. Carruthers entered a suit this morning in the Circuit Court for a decree of divorce from Wm. Carruthers, 102 North Fourth street. They were married January 29, 1879, and lived together until a few days since. Mrs. Carruthers complains of the indignities to which she alleges that her husband has subjected her for several years. She alleges that during a period of sickness in 1880 her husband neglected her and was cold and indifferent to her. After her recovery he maintained the same cold demeanor toward her and made her very unhappy. He remained away from home of an evening, returning at very late hours, and at times his manner was very abusive. He frequently came home under the influence of liquor and abused his wife's relatives and friends and abused the church with which she had been connected from childhood. His language was very profane and his wife alleges that he frequently told her to go to hades; that her relatives were and he said other cruel and insulting things about them. Mrs. Carruthers further alleged that her husband objected to her visiting her mother, sisters or brothers, and refused permission for her to attend church. His manner was abusive, tyrannical, and overbearing. One night last January Mrs. Carruthers alleges that her husband dragged her out of bed and treated her cruelly without any cause or provocation. On the 23d of May he attempted to choke her and broke in a door in his violence and anger. Mrs. Carruhters alleges that he kept up his bibulous habits and remained away from home of an evening in fast company for the space of two years, rendering his wife's condition intolerable. She states that he is possessed of property valued at $5,000 and enjoys an income of $2,500 per annum. Alimony is asked for, together with the custody of the child.

The Press Privilege Case.

Judge Thayer rendered a decision this morning in the habeas corpus case of Will D. Wright, editor and proprietor of the Wayne County Journal. He had claimed discharge from a notary's commitment and imprisonment, in the Judge Wear libel proceeding, on the ground that the notary had no jurisdiction to adjudge him guilty of contempt, because of defects in the proceedings, whereby jurisdiction is supposed to have been acquired; that the question asked which was the basis of the commitment was frivolous and irrelevant, and the notary therefore wrongfully adjudged him guilty of contempt for declining to answer, and the question propounded was one which he might rightfully refuse to answer on the ground of privilege.

Judge Thayer says that a notary is an inferior judicial officer, and the statutory methods whereby jurisdiction may be acquired to commit a witness to prison must be strictly pursued. In this case, however, jurisdiction to adjudge the petitioner guilty of contempt had been lawfully acquired. A case was pending in the Dunklin County Circuit Court, a commission had been duly issued to the notary to take the depositions, and as it was a criminal case the prosecuting attorney had been notified, and a summons served upon the petitioner. Even if the proof warranted the presumption that a witness was examined or that his examination was prolonged merely to keep the commission and notice alive, that fact would not oust the notary of his jurisdiction. If a notary at the instance of either party grossly by continuing a hearing from day to day to the manifest annoyance of the opposite party and without adequate excuse it may be good ground for quashing the depositions, however. The court in thus proceeding cannot review or correct the decision of the notary as to the relevancy of the proof sought to be elicted from the witness. By directing the witness to answer the question the examining officer necessarily held that the question was neither frivolous or irrelevant. His ruling is conclusive to this proceeding. It may be a matter of regret that the courts are not permitted under the habeas corpus act to review the decisions of notaries public as to the relevancy and competency of proof; yet such seems to be the established rule in this State. It was this defect that led to the amendment of the deposition act in cities containing over 200,000 people, whilst the habeas corpus act has been amended since, so as to permit the Court to discharge a prisoner who has been committed by an inferior court for an act adjudged to be a contempt which is plainly not a contempt, yet the amendment has not wrought any change in the well-settled principle that it is a contempt to refuse to answer a question which the examining officer adjudges to be relevant, although his decision may eventually prove to have been erroneous.

NOT A CONTEMPT.

It is not denied that a witness may rightfully refuse to answer any question the answer whereto would subject him to a criminal prosecution and such refusal is not a contempt. There is a manifest difference between questions that are privileged and questions that are merely irrelevant. In the former case the witness determines for himself whether the answer would subject him to a criminal charge, and his decision is only reviewed by the examining officer to see that the claim of privilege is made in good faith. In the latter case the question of the relevancy of proof is a matter that can only be determined by the notary or other examining officer. It does not concern the witness. In this case the petitioner did not appear to base his refusal to answer on the ground that it would tend to criminate him. The claim was first made after the commitment. If the Court could see that the answer might tend to support a criminal charge against the witness it would at once order his release, but the question relates to the authorship of an article published in a newspaper of which the petitioner is the proprietor.

THE COURT CANNOT SURMISE

in what manner an answer to such question might lay the foundation for a criminal charge. The refusal to answer was not occasioned by fear that the answer given would lead to a criminal prosecution against himself, and the shield of privilege is not interposed with good faith but rather as a pretense. The claim of privilege based on the fact that the question asked will compel the petitioner to disclose the name of contributors to his paper is not well founded. The law does not allow witnesses to claim immunity from testifying on such grounds, when the information sought has been held relevant proof in a suit pending between third parties. The Court concludes that the petitioner should be remanded to the custody of the Sheriff.

The Divorce Stands.

Judge Horner to-day refused to set aside a decree of divorce granted Simeon Johnson against Louisa Johnson. The husband alleged that the wife had another husband living at the time of his marriage, and that she rendered his condition intolerable by assaulting him and using obscene language. Mrs. Johnson wanted another trial of the case, so that she could be present and be represented by counsel. She claimed that she was not present at the hearing of the case owing to a mistake as to the date. There was some difficulty about paying her counsel a retaining fee.

Set Aside.

Judge Horner to-day set aside the verdict for the defendant in the damage suit of James G. Cash and others against Joseph Mason and others relative to the recovery of moneys loaned on an alleged cattle-feeding contract.

OUT OF DANGER.

George Withers, Forest's Jockey, Thrown Yesterday, Will Recover.

CHICAGO, June 30.—A dispatch from Washington Park track this morning said that George Withers, the jockey of the race-horse Forest killed in a collision at the track yesterday, is out of danger. The papers this morning state that before the race Forest got away from the stable-boy, who was galloping him and ran around the track at full speed. The boy lay back and pulled like a man in a tug of war team, but the horse finished the mile before he slackened a particle. It was nearly time for the race to be called and the owner of the horse at once led the panting animal up before the stand and asked permission of the judges to draw the horse. After some delay the judges refused to grant the request and ordered the horse to start. George Withers was the rider and when he appeared at the post it was evident that he was having all he could do to control the animal. The horse was half-crazed and bucked and plunged all over the quarter stretch.

THE ILLUMINATIONS.

The Post-Dispatch Fund Growing—Additional Subscriptions Received To-Day.

The popular subscription fund suggested by the POST-DISPATCH is growing rapidly. The amount received up to yesterday evening was $25.50. The additional subscriptions are $1 from Emile Sennewald, and 25 cents, with which was the following letter:

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

My two children desire to contribute the enclosed 25 cents for the illumination fund. They think every child in the city ought to give a nickel, as the children enjoy the illumination more than "grown folks" do. Would it not be a good idea to get small contributions from the children? Yours truly, L.
June 29, 1886.

The suggestion in L.'s letter is a good one, and a few enterprising young persons should go to work and show what the young people can do when they try.

Mr. John S. Moffitt reports very favorably regarding his end of the fund, and is confident that in ten days the entire amount required will be subscribed. The morning's mail as usual was large and contained some very substantial assistance. The retail druggists of the city are becoming interested and are coming nobly to the front with numerous checks and bills. The Railroad Committee are working actively and have great expectations of making a most satisfactory showing.

Recorder of Deeds Thomas Farrelly is making a thorough canvas of the Court-house with good results.

HELD UP AND ROBBED.

Another Highway Outrage—A Brutal Assault—East St. Louis News.

The highway robbers have not yet all left town. About 8 o'clock last evening Celestine Cullin, a Centerville farm hand, started to walk out the Pittsburg track to the four-mile crossing, and when he was passing the pond on this side of Tenth street he was stopped by two men, one of whom was a negro. The negro placed a pistol to Cullin's head and commanded him to throw up his hands. He complied, and the white man then proceeded to rifle his pockets. Cullen only had twenty cents and a pocket-knife, and these the robbers took. They then commanded him to continue on his way out of the city and not to dare for his life to attempt to turn back and follow them. Cullin came into town this morning and related his adventure with the highwaymen to the reporters, but did not report it at police headquarters.

William, the 10-month-old son of Councilman Mark Bird, died yesterday and the funeral took place this afternoon from the family residence in the Fourth Ward to St. Peter's Cemetery.

The price paid by the Todd Shafting and Pulley Company to Buckland & Pallen for the site on which their works are to be erected was $1,800. The works will cover over an acre of ground and a large number of men will be employed.

Christina Dietenhafer swore out a warrant before 'Squire Shea this morning charging Mrs. Toyo with using abusive language. Both parties reside near Heim's brewery.

Mrs. Joseph Gelligan of the First Ward was arrested this morning on complaint of State Humane Agent Eggman who charges her with having seriously impaired the health of her young child by neglect.

Dr. John P. Slusser of the First Ward was assaulted yesterday by William Hicks and Frank Smith and was badly beaten. The cause of the assault is said to have been Slusser's refusal to allow his daughters to accompany the men to Starkel's Park. Dr. Slusser swore out warrants for their arrest, and both were jailed. Their examination was in progress this afternoon before 'Squire Draggon.

The City Council met this morning, a quorum being present. An adjournment until the 16th was taken without transacting any business. At the next meeting the police will be reinstated, as by that time the appropriation for the next fiscal year can be drawn on to pay them their salaries.

THE LOUISVILLE PENSION OFFICE.

Denial of Rumors Affecting the Integrity of Col. Kelly, the Late Agent.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., June 30.—A sensation was created here last night by a rumor that Col. R. M. Kelly, until recently United States Pension Agent at this point, was short in his accounts to the Government. The rumor has been current several days, but last night the Courier-Journal received a dispatch from Washington, saying, on authority of Editor Williams, that when Col. Kelly was succeeded by Gen. Buell as pension agent here, February 27, a settlement of his accounts showed a credit to the Government of $51,000 in the New York Sub-Treasury. Inquiry at the Sub-Treasury, however, revealed the fact that only about $6 was there due the Government from the pension office here. Col. Kelly was notified, and Gen. Williams says he immediately paid over the $51,000, thus squaring his accounts. Gen. Williams, without explaining, said he thought Kelly had been deceived and duped by those he trusted. Col. Kelly says that his accounts have been examined and found to be correct, and that he owes the Government nothing. Col. Kelly is prominent and popular, socially and politically, and is the editor of the Republican paper here.

REPORT OF THE MINORITY OF THE BOARD OF TRUSTEES.

The Question Which the Shaare-Emeth Congregation Will Decide To-Night—A Letter from a Gentile on the Subject.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

As the majority report of the committee appointed by the Shaare-Emeth Congregation to investigate the Sonneschein case has been published in one of the daily papers, it will be but an act of justice to publish the minority report, which is as follows:

St. Louis, June 30, 1886.

To the President, Board of Trustees and Members of Congregation Shaare-Emeth:

GENTLEMEN—At the last board meeting the chair appointed a committee of three of its members to bring in a report concerning the controversies and differences existing between our rabbi and certain members of our congregation.

As the minority member of said committee, I beg leave to submit the following statement of facts for your consideration:

You are aware that Dr. S. H. Sonneschein handed you his resignation, and what was the cause of his so doing? Prior to our last annual election the rabbi requested the members of the preceding board to use their influence to secure a discontinuance of certain slanderous and false reports that had been and were being systematically published in the Jewish Free Press, a hostile journal.

Nothing was done to properly check such false publications. When, therefore, the present board was elected and it was found that several of the members were inimical and bitterly opposed to Dr. Sonneschein, and that the majority of the new board was composed of members who entertained for him the reverse of kindly feelings, not because of devotion to congregational interest, but simply from supposed private grievances or motives, this left for Dr. Sonneschein but one course to pursue, if he expected to maintain his standing in this community as a man and religious instructor.

When the Doctor found himself confronted by this hostile board, being a man of family, for whose support he was in honor and duty bound, what more natural or proper that he should cast about him and ascertain by what means he could secure, in case his opponents succeeded in forcing his severance from the congregation, the support necessary for himself and family—by utilizing the literary talents of himself and wife.

In pursuit of this end he visited Boston to find a larger field for the literary productions on which Mrs. Sonneschien was then engaged. During this visit he also took occasion to consult two of the leading repesentatives of American Unitarianism for the purpose of ascertaining what opportunities would be offered him as a Jewish rabbi for the exercise of his talents as a lecturer. This he certainly had the right to do without exposing himself to the charge of having departed, or attempting to depart, from the doctrines of modern Judaism as entertained by us. Mr. Reynolds, the Secretary of the A. U. A., whose letter is made in part the basis of the charge against Dr. Sonneschein, in his letter expressly states "that Dr. Sonneschein made no application to join the Unitarians, nor has he since made any such application," and that he (Mr. Reynolds) "had long since dropped the matter from his mind as an interesting interview which had, any propably was not expected to have, and practical results beyond better acquaintance with our position and spiritual tendencies." I have the full text of the letters at hand if any desire to have them read. What has been the conduct of the opposition in this case? Has it been characterized by fair, open and just dealing, such as should govern every properly conducted trial. Had they been in search of truth for legimate uses, secret methods would not have been resorted to for its discovery. They deputize a stranger and one not a member of our congregation to visit Boston, and there search for evidence to be used to sustain their accusation against the Doctor, and how do they communicate with this secret agent? Who is the responsible party authorizing and directing this investigation? The results of Lederer's investigation were distributed in pamphlet form, signed by no one known to this congregation. The telegraphic instructions to Mr. Lederer, directing him to "ascertain if Dr. Sonneschein made formal application to the Board of Unitarian Minisisters, and if Sonneschein tried to be an apostate, let nothing deter you from probing the matter to the bottom," are likewise unsigned by any responsible of officer or member of this congregation. Such instructions to an irresonsible agent whose report is solely a matter of hearsay would in all human probability produce just such a report as his master instructed him to secure.

What becomes of the dignity of the board, and where is the respect they owe to you as a congregation when they selected a stranger to perform for them a duty, the most important that has ever affected the interest of this congregation? Of all the 280 members was there not one sufficiently able and trustworthy, who could have been delegated to execute so important a mission, one so intimately affecting the welfare of our congregation?

I beg to further report in response to the summons issued to him by the board, Dr. Sonneschein appeared before them and proposed to answer fully and specifically all questions that might be propounded relative to his visit to Boston, and his conference with Dr. Savage and Dr. Reynolds. The board wished the Doctor's answers to be in English. A stenographer was present. Dr. Sonneschein expressed his willingness to so answer, provided the stenographer should withdraw, as he was not willing to have his statement made public. This reasonable request was denied. The Doctor then stated that he would answer in German, and requested that he be permitted to do so, stating that he was not willing to make his answers before a stranger, but was willing before the board or congregation to fully disclose himself.

The board peremptorily demanded that his answer should be made in English. The Doctor politely declined to be dictated to by the board, who had no jurisdiction over him in this matter, and whose unreasonable action indicated a personal bias; he thereupon withdrew from their presence. Before taking his leave the Doctor stated to the board that he was then engaged in the preparation of a full and complete statement of his position and views relative to the subject under investigation, which would show his complete vindication of the charges made, and asked of the board that it delay action until the report was presented for their consideration.

This moderate and reasonable request was likewise denied the doctor.

Therefore, the minority members of the board requested that (the question in controversy being simply a question of "theological" opinion) it be referred to several of the most learned rabbis for their opinion and judgment, and to await the rabbis' reports before taking action on the subject.

This most reasonable and just request was likewise voted down, showing conclusively that the majority of the board had prejudged the matter, or had determined not to give the doctor a fair trial.

The foregoing facts are submitted for your earnest and careful consideration. I respectfully submit, in the light of the facts above stated, that the resolution of the majority of the committee recommending the expulsion of Dr. Sonneschein from his pulpit, be not adopted, but, on the contrary, that by your vote you vindicate your rabbi of the unjust and unsupported charge made against him. Very respectfully, ADOLPH BAER, Committee.

The Sonneschein Case.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

At the risk of being criticised for officiousness, a Gentile wishes to place himself on record in the Sonneschein matter.

While there has been much thought on this matter outside of Hebrew circles, and while, no doubt, there would have been many protests similar to that of Rev. Dr. Boyd against the persecution of Rabbi Sonneschein, who for liberal, enlightened thought surpasses in power any Jewish divine in America, yet, the Jews being proverbially clannish, it is a problem whether or not the suggestions of a Gentile would have any weight in the vigorous campaign directed against the great humanitarian and worker of religious thought.

From the standpoint of a Gentile it appears as if the antagonism was solidly arrayed in persecution against Rabbi Sonneschein because he wished his fellow man, Jew or Gentile, absolute freedom of thought and from the ostracism of the clannish spirit which affects his countrymen to an advanced degree.

To an outsider, who affiliates with many but who is an adherent of no religious society, it would seem that there is already too much poverty of thought among our religious divines, and that the Hebrew class would be only too proud to maintain an independent thinker and worker in their midst, a man who with his great mind represents fairly and brings respect to his own race.

It would seem that with the limited population of 300,000 Jews in this country that they could not afford to create dissensions and rob a man of the exalted position occupied by Rabbi Sonneschein, a position which eventually will bring Gentile and Jew in closer relations and more honest affiliations.

In commercial life there can be no question of Jewish ability, but the unrighteous opposition under which Rabbi Sonneschein and the community are suffering lends grave doubt as to their ability to govern.

Whatever the antagonism may be to Rabbi Sonneschein among the Jews, there can be no question that the outside public sentiment of St. Louis is with him—not in the position of a martyr, but for his wealth of mind and his educational abilities.

Over the fact that Rabbi Sonneschein has through his pen made many unthinking Gentiles think, and many thoughtless Jews more thoughtful, there can be no dispute.

It is a reasonable supposition that Rabbi Sonneschein, like all men, has faults, and while the writer has no personal acquaintance, yet he does not believe Rabbi Sonneschein would outlive his usefulness by placing himself on a pedestal of perfection.

In the case which is under consideration every educated Jew, no matter what his personal prejudices may be, should subordinate them for the general good, should be proud that a man like Rabbi Sonneschein was of them, and should uphold him in all the earnest endeavors of good of which he is so capable and willing. Respectfully,

JUSTICE, Gentile.

BEECHER IN ENGLAND.

THE GREAT BROOKLYN DIVINE MEETS THE ENGLISH PREMIER.

Mr. Beecher Enthusiastic About the Great Liverpool Meeting—Getting a Clearer Insight Into English Affairs—An Estimate of Mr. Gladstone.

Special Cablegram to the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, June 30.—Mr. and Mrs. Beecher arrived safely in London yesterday. They were met at the London and Northwestern station by Rev. Dr. Parker of the City Temple and his wife, who greeted them with deep affection. After the necessary delay in getting the baggage they entered a carriage and were driven to Dr. Parker's house at Hampstead. Mr. Beecher is in excellent health, but does not intend to lecture before he has had time to rest a little and look around him. He will preach on Sunday, however, at Dr. Parker's Church, near the Holborn Viaduct, and next week he will have to submit to the ordeal of a banquet to be given in his honor by the Lord Mayor and English and American prominent men. The London papers are full of ordial welcome to him. Mr. Beecher is full f enthusiasm about the great Liverpool meetng which was addressed by Mr. Gladstone ast Monday. The Liverpool papers have alady interviewed the distinguished guest s to the impressions left on him by the eloence of England's "Grand Old Man," and nglish Liberals are pleased to learn that he has gained a clearer insight into Irish affairs from listening to a single speech of Mr. Gladstone's than he ever had before. Mr. Beecher seems to have been particularly impressed by the enthusiasm shown by the audiences for the great Liberal leader. Believing that your readers would like to know more of and Liverpool impressions, your correspondent took the liberty of asking him what he thought of Mr. Gladstone and of his speech. Mr. Beecher referred to his Liverpool experience with evident pleasure. He said that he himself had had a very gracious reception on the platform before Mr. Gladstone came in, and had felt greatly pleased and flattered with the hearty welcome given him by the vast audience. While seated on the platform, he said, he had been invited to repair to the anteroom in order to meet Mr. Gladstone, which he did with pleasure.

"Mr. Gladstone, his wife and daughter," said Mr. Beecher, "came into the room. He shook hands with me very cordially, and although Mrs. Gladstone would not allow her husband to say anything, we had, nevertheless, a few words together. I found Mr. Gladstone to be a medium-sized man. He is not so short as I had anticipated. He is extremely well built. He is of nervous temperament. His head is remarkably broad over the top. His brow is not as massive as perhaps might be expected, but it is wide with prominent perceptive faculties, well balanced by the reflective faculties. The chest and stomach are both the building up and recuperative powers of a man. His voice is not heard to the best advantage when he speaks in large halls. The work of the campaign which he had gone through had made him somewhat husky when he appeared at Liverpool, although that impediment gradually cleared as the excitement brought up his nervous tone. His voice has an extensive compass, but is t has what may be styled the tenor baritone uality. In carriage and manners he is neither tately nor in any way remarkably impressive. Ie was familiar, genial, simple. His speech, aking it from beginning to end, in its interior ualities and the purposes for which he spoke, as most admirable. His discourse rolled on rom topic to topic without any formal concentration and had the charm of variety and nartificialty. It was a very convincing preentation of the great question of home rule or Ireland. It was preceded by replies to the riticisms that had been made by his oppoents. In answering objections and criticisms e gave severe retorts, veiled in humor, blows traight out and downright that seemed, howver, to be delivered with gloves. He did not xhibit wit but the delicate bloom of humor. In any of the most effective passages, notably the beginning and at the end, the impression roduced upon my mind was that he was very ncere and that he spoke from his own deept convictions, with intensity and with great eling underlying every part of his speech. is grounds were moral grounds. His speech as full of meaning passages, addressed to the agination and to the feelings of his audience. these were not artful; they were simply ice words used to bring the audience to the owledge of the truth. Without apparent meditation come passages up and down ough the whole of the masterly discourse, ich touch the deepest feelings of a man's l. When all this is said, it describes simply e act of Gladstone, but not Gladstone him. He is a man of not a dry scholiast. He is not a technical yclopaedia of dates and facts, though he is iliar with them all. I am told that he could ke an address in modern Greek in Athens, e purest Italian in Florence, in classical in in Rome, in German at Berlin, and in purest French at Paris. All subjects that erest human nature seem to find in him an terpreter. It is not meant by this that he is expert, nor an authority in any one of these partments; but any man that is a aster of the facts and philosophy these departments, when kindled now, upon a great public question that ensts his heart and soul, shines down upon his dience like the light through a cathedral ndow, made up of all colors the sun can oduce, and its brilliance and richness and ange and weird effects must be witnessed, ey cannot be described. I regard Mr. Gladne," Mr. Beecher continued, "as by far most notable man in Great Britain, as by the most comprehensively educated, the st profoundly moral and religious, the st philosophical and earnest English speakman on the globe."

The entertainwas held at the Picwick Theater, and sed of an elegant lunch trimmed with refreshments and cigars, responses to sts, vocal selections, recitations and mpromptu speeches. There was a large at[illegible] both councils, the memberships of which are noted, as made up of the leading representative men of the city. Smith P. Galt delivered the address of welcome, that turned out principally to be a learned discourse upon the habits of some peculiar bird he had once met. In response to the toast of "The Royal Arcanum," Grand Regent H. W. Chandler gave an admirable account of the founding, progress and aims of the order. Other speeches were by Regent Klein of Council Hill, Geo. Minch, T. Walsh, Geo. Wright and Frank Thomas. The latter gentleman became rather personal in his remarks, the fact that a former occasion had failed to produce more than a feast of reason and a flow of nothing else seemingly having rankled in the speaker's bosom. Geo Wright, also of Compton Hill, soothed the assemblage, however, by intimating that Mr. Thomas had worked up quite a reputation as a follower of free spreads and concluded by rendering in a most impressive and pathetic manner, "The Lullaby." Recitations by E. L. McDowell and Tom McPheeters were finely given, Mr. McPheeters delivering a highly original one that had never been heard by Valley Council more than six or eight times. The assemblage dispersed at about 12 o'clock.

A MONKEY SHOW IN THE HOUSE OF DELEGATES.

Advantages of a Rear View—Scenes from the Lobby Side of the Rail—Disorder and Schoolboy Pranks—"Please Ma'am, May I Go Out?"—Collins in an Embarrassing Position—A Rag Baby's Flight—The Dignified Council.

A perspective view of a woman seen from behind, on the street or on a ball-room floor, suggests possibilities of beauty that a front view rarely fulfills.

The House of Delegates seen from the lobby is a far less formidable, and intellectually a greater body than seen from the reporter's table.

The POST-DISPATCH, last evening, saw the finale of the comic opera so successfully managed during the past season in that chamber by Messrs. Coakly, Pishon & Co., from the lobby, and truth to tell enjoyed the performance much more than when he was a welcomed guest in the wings.

One sees strange sights in the wine-room—repulsive sights; but with the knowledge of what there is behind the scenes, he may sit with the herd in the audience and find a richer comedy in unnoticed by-play than the ordinary auditor sees in the professedly funny labor of the comedian.

In the audience one does not need to remember that the spectacular beauty of the soprano is a thing of paint and patches; one does not need to remember that the soubrette is so funny only because she is just a little tight.

And in the lobby the soprano of this opera, Mr. Fox, looms to a mountain of congressional possibility, and the soubrette, Mr. Waters, is just a quiet little fellow who is never half as funny as he can be out, of regard for the ribs of those about him. Mr. Collins, upon whom all the comedians work their will, is from this view quite a comedian himself, and Mr. Pishon would be a delightful Pooh Bah-like encumbrance on the stage if he was not so careless of effect. The dialect artist, Mr. Monahan, is properly the only recipient of flowers, and that veteran on this stage, Mr. Marriott, could bring down the house at any time if he would only ask some one to sing "Cropple Lie Doon."

The last act of this now famous body of legislators was filled with buffoonery. From the first that element was present, and the monotony of routine was a thing of past sessions. There was a comic swing to the clerk's voice as he read the formal language of documents, messages from the Council, largely composed of "B. P. Taaffe, Secretary," and bills with more head than body and no feet to stand on.

In the course of the proceedings Mr. Stone endeavored to take up House bill, No. 11, an ordinance giving the Tucker Elevated Railroad people a franchise. The bill failed to go to engrossment one meeting night long ago, and Mr. O'Neil, who has been endeavoring to kill the bill, claimed that under the rules this killed it. The chair did not sustain him. Mr. Stone argued last night that under the chair's decision the bill was before the House. Mr. O'Neil argued that it was not and the chair should reverse itself. Mr. Fox supported the latter view and Mr. Marriott the former. The other members let them fight it out. The vote by which the bill failed to go to engrossment was finally reconsidered and a motion to order it to engrossment was lost. The bill is now dead.

Mr. Pishon took the chair in the midst of some confusion that ensued which Speaker Alt did not feel himself capable of dealing with.

Mr. Collins moved to adjourn, so did Mr. Fox, so did Mr. Coakly; somebody wanted a recess.

The chair decided all were out of order. Mr. Coakly appealed. The chair turned its back on the confusion, elevated its feet to the top of the desk, leaned back in its chair and prepared to enjoy an Iron Mountain cigar. When the House resumed a near approach to quiet, the chair said, it would recognize some one.

That time did not come, but some messages from the Council did and the Speaker ordered their consideration. Mr. Collins renewed his motion to adjourn. Mr. Pishon would not recognize him, and the clerk sailed into public improvement bills fiercely. The members grew weary and the Chair remained oblivious of all motions, simply saying once in a while, "The bill will now be placed upon its passage." At length the point was reached for signing bills, and Mr. Alt resumed the chair. Nearly 11 o'clock had been reached by this time, and the members were growing thirsty. The Irrigation Committee was not in the lobby, and it became necessary to visit a neighboring saloon. The Sergeant-at-Arms was instructed to allow no members to pass the wicket.

The Speaker refused to entertain motions for adjournment, recess or anything else. Members, after making such motions, would disgustedly grab their hats and rush toward the wicket, only to be turned back by the imperturbable Haiko. He carried on his set, determined face a sign "No Thoroughfare."

Mr. Hammerstien jumped over the railing and disappeared before the Seargeant-at-Arms could catch him. He returned quickly, and it seemed he only did the trick to assert his independence. Messrs. Monahan, Brockmeier and Fox, with hats in their hands, tried to persuade Haiko to let them pass. It was useless. Brockmeier tried to find an exit through the committee-rooms, but all doors were locked and he was forced to return. The three then very humbly asked the Speaker's permission to pass the wicket. He allowed them to go.

Mr. Collins wanted to go. The Speaker would not give him permission. He retired to his seat and with his hat behind him ambled unconcernedly toward the wicket. Haiko understood that game and would not be caught off his guard. Incensed over the failure of the second attempt Mr. Collins had launched into a denunciation of the Speaker, when Mr. Marriott, who had stepped out previously, returned, and as there was then one more than a quorum present the Speaker gave Mr. Collins permission to go. After this point the remaining members were allowed to go out as soon as others come in.

An attempt was made to take up the elevated electric railroad bill, but it failed, and the House went on with the consideration of bills for public improvements. After 12 o'clock, when most of this work was finished, some one introduced a rag bag on the floor. It was hurled at one speaker after another, and was the most effective quencher of eloquence ever known on that floor.

The House in an uproar resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole and elected Mr. Collins to the chair. Motions were made to appoint committees to do impossible things. A committee was called for to chastise the author of charges of drunkenness. An appropriation was suggested and moved to build a tunnel around the city. Some one wanted a stone wall built about it instead. Another member wanted all street railroad companies to abandon their surface tracks and provide baloons. The motions were guys at the chairman, and when with a proper sense of the dignity of his position he endeavored to put one of the earliest and least preposterous he was laughed down and no vote was allowed. The arguments, noise and motions lasted for nearly half an hour, when Mr. Collins, who had endeavored to secure order, left the chair and gave notice of his intention of resigning. As this was the tenth time such notice had been given the members merely laughed and several showed him how much more humorous the proceedings had appeared from the floor than from the chair.

They were hidiously funny as seen from the lobby.

As there was nothing further to be done the House grew tired of throwing the rag baby and adjourned to meet November 9.

THE COUNCIL

faithfully, seriously and conscientiously considered the various measures before it and adjourned at 9:30 o'clock, after a session of six hours and a half unillumined by a single flash of real humor. True, Mr. Stone read a statement eight pages long of his quarrel with Assessor O'Brien, but then that was very serious to Mr. Stone. The Ways and Means Committee filed a lengthy report on ferriage tolls, public improvement bills were passed, a bill increasing salaries of deputy boiler inspector and inspector's clerk was lost, and minor measures were disposed of. A lunch was provided in the committee-room, in which the strongest beverage served was coffee.

How a Justice Got Left.

The Justice of the Peace marriage commission scheme at the Court-house does not always work to the profit of the Justice. A day or so ago a country couple obtained a license and were accosted as usual by the drummer for the Justices around the Court-house. They were shown the way to Justice Taaffe's office, where the ceremony was quickly performed. At the close the Justice put out his hand for his fee, but the bridegroom coolly remarked that he had paid the Court-house people $1 for a license and he did not propose to pay a cent for tying the knot. He did not pay, but was married all the same.

WORK OF THE REPUBLICAN STATE CONVENTION OF PENNSYLVANIA.

ing of the Party Leaders and Their kers at Harrisbug To-Day—No Men of inence in Attendance—The Cameron uence—Quay's Power and Leadership —The Probable Ticket.

Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH.

ARRISBURG, Pa., June 30.—The convention Pennsylvania Republicans which meets to-day has been heralded far and wide as s free from boss rule and unterrified by tes of syndicates. I have been to many h bodies, but have seldom seen any that ked like this. It strikes one as a fitter rep- ntation of a small plantation of people a of a State whose powerful materialities coal and iron. Of natural gas there is, of rse, an abundance. The attendance is ge of both delegates and outsiders. It is d to recognize almost any one known n to local fame. The majority are rustic d rural in character and appear- e. It is heralded as essentially unmanaged body, but unless all signs fail, will prove to be the easiest body of Repub- ans to handle that of late years has assem- d at the State Capital of Pennsylvania. ere are no men of large prominence here, or out of the convention. I have seen to- but three men in all the city whose names e ever been echoed beyond the lines of the mmonwealth. They are Gen. Hartranft, alusha A. Grow and John Cessna, both the latter having been in Congress. rtranft is renewing old acquaint- ces and gathering materials for me reminiscences which it is suggested he y print. Mr. Grow is always present at te conventions. Apparently the ex- eaker could not live if he did not remind e party of his existence. He is a wandering ghost with a senatorial bee on his bon- t, whose presence reminds the old stagers the "have beens." John Cessna probably me to refresh himself with the hope of be- g again selected as a presiding officer. here is a Congressman in town, I am told, d Senator Cameron is expected to-day. n. Hartranft is the most respected person- ity seen here and he shows ere are furrowed lines in his face. His ustache, once so black and martial, has own gray and civic. He moves a little ower and his shoulders stoop ightly. Everybody is glad to e him for he rouses no hostilities. A. Grow, however, strikes me as restless d as possessing many a covert thrust to give r take. With a few score of men wearing the ronze button of the Grand Army and occasionally showing by a lost limb the proofs of their services, this Republican convention pays its debts to that historical period where men and principles were its motives. Gen. Beaver's one leg is the only proclamation that will be made by this convention. Everybody seems to concede the State, and yet nearly all ill deny that any slate has been set up. The isdom of the Camerons is seen in the Sen- or's declaration that this is the "people's nvention." The fact is that the body is ing fixed without trouble, because its mem- ership is fresh and largely untrained. The litical knowledge of the delegates seldom been extended beyond the lls of their school-house or town etings. They fall an easy prey to the man- ement of two or three men. The real chief them is is A. S. Quay, who lands fish with- t even angling for them. Being apparently ft to manage itself the party has put itself to leading strings adroitly hidden or sought be. Senator Simon Cameron's stone man- on by the Susquehanna has had open doors l day. That sagacious personality, with its ghty-seven years, still hale and sturdy, car- es weight and yet rides the race of politics a easy winner. All day yesterday he has re- ived visitors, and it is safe to say that but a ry few of those present will leave the city ithout paying a visit to the Republican Nes- r. It is the Cameron role just now to pro- aim "in hands of." So much of this has said by others that I expected to realize thing of the sort in the appearance of the gates. I fail to find any such sign, and it is fact that makes the occasion more note- thy. In a parlor of the Lochiel House sets "Brains" as the admirers of A. S. Quay, Republican boss of Pennsylvania, delight call him. His face is a mask and seldom ows what is beneath.

HE IS ADROIT AND KEEN.

ust now he has shown this by giving the uld-be independent leader, Charles S. ife, a certificate of good character. Four s ago the Cameron-Quay managers wanted ominate Wolfe as Lieutenant-Governor. convention was independent enough to lare that it would not conciliate bol ers. olfe is now aiming to lead the Prohibition ovement and answers the charges that he d in with Quay in 1882 with a certificate n that gentleman to the effect that he did such thing. This settles that probability en he wrote his letter. Mr. Quay is more n a political boss. He is a born leader and rained manager of men. About 50 years of , with strong, earnest features, a broad, p head and a face reserved, but not stolid, sits in his shirt sleeves, comfortably striv- to keep cool, while with imperturbable he listens to all whispers and answers . It is said Mr. Quay is likely to land in ited States Senate. He has the capacity his own there, if that event ever akes No other single man except Si- Cameron has ever held as much power he Republican party of Pennsylvania, he will use it to make himself Senator. slate is Gen James A. Beaver for Gov- r, Col. Davies for Lieutenant-Governor, Norris of Philadelphia for Auditor, Gen. art for Secretary of Internal Affairs. Dr. erts of Titusville, inventor of torpedoes a millionaire, is the slate candidate for gressman-at-Large. The other proposed inations are all respectable. There are ellent reasons for their selection. It will ifficult to suggest the same for Dr. Rob- , but he has a "bar'l" and has, it is pre- ned, consented to knock in its head so that State Committee may help itself to the tents. The popularity of Gen. Beaver and soldiers' influence for him as well as for the er "vets" who are on the slate, will prob- y carry even Dr. Roberts through. If the vention should take the bit in its teeth re are elements that, if well led, might sh the plan and change the result. The e of contention is over the Lieutenant- ernorship. Maj. Montooth of Pittsburg a sweet tooth that aches for that office. He ere with three clubs of Pittsburg ward poi- ans at his back. They have a band of sic, and Chris Magee, the boss of Allegheny nty, to announce the purpose. The Major ht make a combination with Col. Osborne, is a candidate for the Congressional hon- as against Dr. Roberts. If he does there is all depends upon how much Magee cares. his role to play a contrary game appar- ly to the other bosses. But it is only in ap- rance. In this case he wears a Montooth ge, but doubtless carries a Davies ballot. ee is a young man, dark of complexion, a e furtive in expression, wily and subtle. is above middle stature, stocky and smooth contour. Like most town-bred and well- Pennsylvanians, he dresses well and is l to do. His voice is low, well modulated, l his manner easy. He never drinks. poses well and skillfully. I uld fear that "Chris" nurses his anger ugh he does not show it. The real issue of convention is that of temperance. The hibitionists are likely to be formidable in state. They want a constitutional amend- t submitted to the popular v te. The Re- lican bosses are willing to concede high nse and local option, but they would like odge the amendment issue. The dele- I have seen do not strike me as Maine men. It is no use attempting to predict particular shade of evasion that will be ted on this temperance issue. The orm-makers are still in doubt. It is ikely to be tossed into the arena for the ates to consider. On the tariff Gen. r's resolutions will be adopted urging ction to the merchant marine as well as ntinuance in the present form. Labor e glossed over. There are no appeals to de by an authorized representative on ized labor. So far as the Knights and unions are concerned this Republican ntion will be ignored. It looks like an elivery and a speedy adjournment.

CEEDINGS OF THE CONVENTION.

s Tariff Address Adopted by the Convention—Hastings' Speech.

ARRISBURG, Pa., June 30.—A sea of restless mes the eye of Chairman Cooper of the publican State Committee at 10 o'clock, when he mounted the stage of the Opera-house to call the State Convention to order. Such a gathering at a Republican State Convention has not been seen here in recent years. The house was packed from orchestra to the back doors of the galleries and a pushing throng darkened the open spaces leading to daylight. Upon the platform, which was almost painfully crowded, a plush and gold banner bearing the legend "Beaver and Montooth" was the only factional emblem to be seen in the building, showing that the Montooth boom did not propose to give up until the last moment. A band was stationed in each wing of the balcony and enlivened the hours before the opening with patriotic airs. Without remark Senator Cooper directed that the call for the State convention be read, upon the conclusion of which the minor officers were announced and a list of the delegates was read. There was not a contested seat and the delegations were full. The report of the committee on the revision of the rules was then submitted and upon motion was referred to the Committee on Resolutions yet to be appointed.

G. T. Oliver was then nominated by J. W. Morrison as temporary chairman and the nomination was ratified.

Hon. Jno. Cessna and Mr. Quay were appointed to conduct Mr. Oliver to the platform. Mr. Oliver, in accepting the position, said: "It is an honor to any man to be chosen to preside over the deliberations of the assembled representatixes of the Republicans of Pennsylvania. For this honor, fellow delegates, I tender you my hearty thanks. From the enthusiasm of this convention, the crowds that have gathered to witness its proceedings and the spirited though friendly contests for the places to be filled the lie is given to the assertion often made, that the mission of the Republican party has been fulfilled.

WITH OUR ANCIENT FOES

in possession of the Federal Government, and the lower and more important branch of the national Congress endeavoring by every means to enact legislation that will close up hundreds of our workshops and drown the fires in thousands of our furnaces, it is more than ever necessary that the Republican party should live, and above all, that the Republicans of this great State should proclaim to the world that we demand a tariff, not for revenue only, not even for revenue with incidental protection, but for protection alone. I mention this issue particularly because it is so interwoven with the prosperity of our people that it is necessarily paramount in the minds of all Pennsylvanians.

"The fact that it remains unsettled is reason enough for the continuance in life of any party, but there are others second only to it in importance. The question of the mutual rights and duties of capital and labor—the enactment of laws guarding the interests of both common carriers and shippers—these and many other matters demand the attention of our Legislatures, State and national. With all these, and with any other questions that may arise, whether political, economical, or moral, the party that saved the nation can be trusted to deal. In fact, as long as there are wrongs of any kind to be righted and to be maintained the mission of the Republican party will be unfulfilled, and its adherents will be found on the side of progress and right."

THE TARIFF ADDRESS.

The tariff address adopted by the Convention reviews the history of the tariff since 1832, to show that the Democratic party has for the last fifty years legislated against the best interests of the American people in the direction of free trade to the great detriment of American industry. Reference is made to the repeal of the Democratic free-trade law by the Republican Congress in 1861, when the Morrill ariff act was passed, and "for the first time in the history of the country," says the address, we have had twenty years of uninterrupted protection to the American labor and capital." Figures are quoted to show that in 1860 the total value of property in the country was $14,000,000,000. In 1880 the total value was $44,000,000,000, an increase in twenty years of $30,000,000, or more than double the accumulated property from 1607 to 1860. During the years of free trade ended in 1861 our imports exceeded our exports $403,679,744. Under the operation of ten years of protection ended June 30, 1880, our exports have exceeded our imports $1,306,543,249, or an annual average of $130,654,324, a net gain in our favor of $170,000,000 a year. Reference is made to attempted tariff legislation by Democrats since 1875, when they obtained control of the House, each of which is denounced as dangerous attempts to overthrow the great system which has built up the industries of the country. In closing, attention is called to the fact that the Democrats are still determined to insist upon a reduction of the duties and to abolish the tariff upon raw material, thus further menacing the prosperity of the country.

HASTINGS' SPEECH.

Mr. Hastings began his speech in the Republican Convention by saying that the Republican party of Pennsylvania was never in better condition than now to enter upon a successful campaign. The honest differences of other years have crystalized its aims and purposes, justified its hopes, blotted out animosities and forever reunited that splendid army. The common enemy, he said, is entrenched in power, State and Federal, but the Republicans of the whole State have given voice to their preference for a standard-bearer. He then paid a glowing tribute to Mr. Beaver, whose character, manhood, and achievements have become part of the history of the State. He spoke of his fearless character, his clear judgment, his keen sympathy and his manly courage which none dared to question. "His comrades who wear the metal star upon their breasts," the speaker continued; "they who saw the hole torn across the row of buttons upon his coat, while leading his command at Chancellorville, who were by his side when he fell at Cold Harbor. who saw him blown into the air at Petersburg, and they who followed him two and twenty years ago and saw the flash of his sword when at Beams Station he fell bleeding, marred and maimed, never more to tread the earth without the aid of his inseperable friend—that well-known crutch—these are some of the men, kindred heroes, who would have you honor him to-day. And thousands of others all over this broad Commonwealth who know his worth and believe in his Republicanism, who, in many campaigns, have heard him give expression to the noblest inspirations of their cause, who beheld the shafts and arrows aimed at him lie broken at his feet, who saw him suffer defeat in civil life with the same courage that characterized him in the field of battle, have made him their choice. And thousands more of good men and true, who beheld him coming forth from the fiery temptest of 1882, all glorious in his conscious manhood, with the broken banner of his party in his hand, will to suffer that it might be purified, disenthralled and united—all these will, I know, second the nomination, which I now make of Gen. James A. Beaver for the office of Governor of Pennsylvania."

A REMARKABLE BILL.

THE POWER OF REMOVAL TO BE VESTED IN THE JUDICIARY.

Senator Edmunds' Measure Introduced in the Senate—An Effort for a Tariff Discussion—Report of the Pan-Electric Committee—Assistant Secretary of State Hunter Dangerously Ill—Washington News.

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 30.—Senator Edmunds introduced in the Senate to-day a bill entitled "A bill to vest in the President of the United States the appointment of sundry inferior officers thereof, to regulate their tenure of office and to provide for their removal when the public interests shall require it." The bill leaves absolutely in the President's hands the appointments of all Postmasters, Collectors of Customs in small districts, officials of the Indian, land and other offices beneath the Commissioners of those offices, and in fact all minor officers. The tenure of these offices, it is provided, shall be four years. Section three provides the method by which any one of these officers may be suspended or removed. It provides when the President or a head of department thinks an officer of that department has been guilty of malfeasance in office, or personal or official misconduct, he may temporarily suspend him by an order of suspension in writing. In every such case of suspension, or in case the President shall be of opinion that such officer ought to be removed without suspension, application shall be immediately made to the Circuit Justice, Circuit Judge or District Judge of the District or to the Justice of the Supreme Court of the Territory or District of Columbia in which the office is stationed, for the removal of such officer, stating the ground of the proposed removal. Whereupon the Justice or Sudge shall cite the officer accused to appear and show cause why he should not be removed, and on the day set the Judge shall hear in a summary way and determine and decide whether the officer ought to be removed from office or not, and shall order and direct accordingly. The evident object of the bill is to relieve the Senate of a large amount of burdensome work and to take the power of removal from the partisan President and Senate, and put it in hands of an impartial judicial tribunal.

The Pan-Electric.

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 30.—Chairman Boyle of the Pan-Electric investigating committee presented his report to the House today. He accompanied it with a resolution recommended by all the Democratic members of the committee, Mr. Hale included. The committee adopted this resolution yesterday for the purpose of meeting the matter before the House. Speaker Carlyle informed Mr. Boyle yesterday that, without a majority report of some kind, the matter could not be brought before the House under the rules. Accordingly the committee met to discuss some method whereby a majority of the committee could come to an agreement. Mr. Raney offered a resolution setting forth that, "Whereas, there were three reports and those of Mr. Boyle and Mr. Hale more nearly coincided, these two together be consider the majority report. The Democratic members were not satisfied with this. Then Mr. Boyle offered a resolution which, after some discussion, was adopted by all the Democrats. It sets forth that it is the belief of the House that Messrs. Garland, Good, Atkins, Johnston and Harris have been guilty of nothing dishonest or dishonorable.

Protective Legislation.

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 30.—The Senate Finance Committee yesterday discussed the application of the California wine growers for protective legislation. They reached no conclusion, but it is not considered probable that they will pass a bill this session. The existing law imposes a tax on spurious wines, but this law, it is claimed, is inoperative. The Senate committe, however, will not legislate further on this point. If any bill is reported it will be a bill to remove the tax from grape brandy manufactured by California vintners and used in fortifying sweet wines. This brandy now pays a tax of 90 cents a gallon, which the wine dealers claim prohibits exportation. The committee will hold a meeting to-morrow to dispose of the subject.

Assistant Secretary Hunter Dying.

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 30.—Grave fears are entertained at the State Department in regard to the condition of Assistant Secretary Wm. Hunter. Mr. Hunter has been confined to his bed since the 1st of last November, and for some time seemed to be gradually recovering his health. He is now sinking, however, and growing weaker, and his death is only a question of a short time. He keeps up his spirits and is continually making plans for the future. He is over 80 years old and has been in the service of the Government since 1829, a longer period than any one else. He started in as a clerk, and has worked his way up to the position of Assistant Secretary by his own earnest efforts.

Probable Tariff Discussion.

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 30.—When Mr. Randall introduced his tariff bill and had it referred to the Ways and Means Committee it was supposed that he had done so simply for the purpose of getting before the country the tariff reform ideas of himself and his followers. It was also supposed that Morrison would so amend it as to make it substantially a Morrison bill, and thus settle its fate in the House. It is said now that a different programme has been agreed on. A Democratic member of the Ways and Means Committee is to-day quoted as having said that Mr. Morrison would report the bill back without amendment adversely. This he is expected to do before the end of the present week. If he does, it is almost impossible to avoid a tariff dicussion. Both wings of the Democratic party would undoubtedly flop together on a motion to take up the bill for consideration, and a consideration of the Randall bill means a protraction of the session to the middle of August at least. An effort will be made by those who want an early adjournment to persuade Mr. Morrison not to report the Randall bill.

When people had had a good opportunity to inspect her, Mrs. Cleveland re-entered her carriage and was driven away.

SCRIMMAGE ON 'CHANGE.

The Afternoon Session Wiped Out—Storage Rates—Exchange Notes.

The Western Union office on 'Change was the center of attraction for a few brief moments this morning, a passage at arms between a couple of the telegraph operators drawing a crowd around the counter in short order. A lad named Jermingen, nick-named "Texas," tied one of the operators, Green by name, to his chair, the latter reciprocated by striking the young fellow in the face, and he retaliated by throwing a loaded inkstand at his head. The only damage was to the clothes of several of the boys, Manager Bohl receiving most of the inky fluid over his shirt and clothes.

Elevator men said that at their meeting to be held this afternoon they would probably reduce their storage charges upon grain to one cent for the first ten days, proqided the railroad companies agreed to enforce the rule requiring all grain to be put in elevator after the twenty-four hour limit allowed after arrival. If the railroadf do not consent to this it is hardly probable the elevators will make any reduction in their rates. The change if made will not effect corn until September first, as there are a large number of contracts now out in the country for corn to come here based upon a half cent rebate from the regular rate.

THE ADJOURNMENT QUESTION.

It is a difficult matter to down the grain option traders. Most of them had made up their minds to dispense with the afternoon board during the months of July and August, as all other markets would then be closed to business during the afternoon and they didn't care about loafing around a hot room for a half-hour without anything to do. At the regular call to-day D. P. Grier moved that the Board of Directors be requested to adjourn the afternoon board during the time ruled above, and the motion was carried almost unanimously. The directory granted the request, so that the Exchange will close for the day at 1 p. m. hereafter, until September 1. A petition requesting a reconsideration of yesterday's vote on the question of closing the Exchange next Saturday was signed by enough members to bring it before the members for a vote once more. When Vice-President Teichmann rapped the Exchange to order at noon to-day he announced that such a petition had been presented, as "some of the members who always vote for adjournment when other Exchanges close, whether this adjournment is detrimental to the interest of all other members or not," were disappointed in the vote of yesterday. D. P. Grier then moved that the request of the petition be complied with, just getting his motion in before one offered by John Wahl that the petition be tabled. Upon a vote being taken the ayes had it so decidedly that the motion was declared carried without a single call for discussion. Some of the members who voted aye thought they were so voting upon the question of tabling. The Exchange will close Friday at 1 p. m., not to open again until Tuesday morning. There was some talk of another reconsideration of the vote on adjournment Saturday, but the general belief was that the matter would now be allowed to rest as it is.

A Kansas City Real Estate Man Uses His Knife on a Hostler.

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 30.—Fred Gudgel, colored, employed in the livery stable of McClanathan & Robinson, was stabbed badly half a dozen times to-day by J. Robinson, of the real estate firm of Barnes & Robinson, all of this city. Robinson went into the stable to get his carriage and applied vile epithets to Gudgel for some reason. Gudgel resented the insult and the two men clinched. Robinson pulled his knife and dealt the colored man a number of blows which will probably prove fatal. In the affray Tom Burnett, brother of the meat inspector, was badly injured in the arm while trying to interfere.

A Fee Squabble.

Messrs. Dyer, Lee & Ellis last evening presented in Judge Horner's court a motion in the name of Mrs. Julia Breckenridge for payment of $2,500 for the legal services of that firm in her divorce proceeding. Mr. Breckenridge, having carried out fully the terms of the alimony settlement upon Mrs. Breckenridge, objects to this charge and will resist the motion. The matter was expected to come up before the court this morning and Mr. Breckenridge was on hand with his counsel, J. G. Lodge. Messrs Dyer & Lee were also present and there was some consultation in the Judge's chambers, but nothing was done in open court. The divorce case was not contested and the hearing only occupied half a day, but counsel allege that they did a large amount of other work in the suit.

PROUD BALTIMORE.

The Cardinal City of the United States—Archbishop Gibbons' Investiture.

BALTIMORE, Md., June 30.—Baltimore became this morning the cardinal city of the United States, and Archbishop Gibbons was invested with the scarlet berretta with all the magnificent ceremonial and Roman liturgy and the splendid pomp befitting his exalted rank as a prince of the Holy Catholic Church. Just twenty five years ago James Gibbons was ordained a priest in the chapel of St. Mary's Seminary in this city by Archbishop Kenrick, and on this, his silver jubilee, he received from the hands of the venerable Archbishop of St. Louis the insignia of his high dignity. The ceremony took place in the noble old Cathedral, in which, as apostolic delegate, he so recently directed the deliberations of the Plenary Council.

The investure of the beretta was the occasion of an ecclesiastical demonstration that is not likely to be again witnessed in many years. As the Cardinal passed from his palace to the church, the people stood in respectful sileence with heads uncovered. At 10:30 o'clock the students of St. Charles College headed by a guard of honor selected from the Young Catholic Friends Society and the Catholic Benevolent Legation, marched out of St. Alphonsus' Hall, on Saratoga street. They were followed by 150 seminarians of St. Alpice, and several hundred of the regular and secular clergy, all robed in black with short white cassocks. They were preceded by professional croos and censor bearers, and took up the line of march to the arch-Episcopal palace As the end of the line passed the palace it was joined by a noble procession of Monsignori, mitred abbotts, right reverend bishops and most reverand archbishops. Archbishop Kenrick of St Louis. the apostolic delegate, was accompanied by his assistants, Rev. Thomas S. L, rector of the Cathedral, with his chaplains, Rev. John Foley of St. Martin's and Rev. Father Hennessy of St. Louis. Then came Monsignor Straneiro, the Papal Ablegate, wearing robes of royal purple, in line with the venerable Archbishop Williams of Boston, and last in the line was His Eminence, the Cardinal, attended by his assistant and priest, Mgr. Edward McColgan, Vicar-General of the Archdiocese and his deacons of honor, the very Rev. Alfred Maguire, the Superior of the Sulphican Academy, and Rev. B. J. McManus, pastor of St. John's Church. On the extreme right of the last line was Count Mucciola, in the brilliant uniform of the noble Guard. He wore a short coat of scarlet cloth heavily trimmed with gold cord, tight-fitting chamois trousers with boots, spurs and sword During the mass Archbishop Ryan of Philadelphia made an address on the life of the new Cardinal and the Church in its relations to Government. Rev. Mr. Brandi, Secretary. Mgr. Straniero, the papal ablegate, presented to Archbishop Kenrick, the scarlet beretta.

STILL SWAPPING.

Longs Performing Their Regular Act of Changing to Next Month.

Special by Telegraph from Pickering & Co., Chicago to the POST-DISPATCH.

CHICAGO, June 30. 1 p. m.—Calls were all good yesterday and the parties that sold them were around with lanterns last evening trying to buy back at 74⅞@75c. The result was that when the public cables showed a decrease in the amount afloat of over 3,000,000 there was no wheat for sale and the market shot up like a rocket to 75¾. Selling against calls and other influences caused a break of half a cent. Some private cables say cargoes off-coast firm and good demand, but others say no demand, and Liverpool stock, 610,000 quarters, an increase of 500,000 bu since April 1. Nightengale's dispatches are the same old rehash—dull; no demand, etc. Since the break the market has ruled very quiet, very little doing in the pit, except by scalpers. The demand for cash seems to have dropped off entirely. There was no inquiry for it here and only two loads taken in New York. The crowd of commission men have been busy selling out the July stuff for their customers and buying August, and when the last of August comes probably will be selling August and buying September. This has been the order of things for the last year. Instead of being able to lift the cash, the future, come down to that. The closing is weak at the lowest point of the day, 75c for August.

Corn is very heavy, reaching the lowest point yet, 34½c for July, with August 1½c premium and September 2½c. It has been a good many years since we had such carrying charges for corn, and it's beating all the traders except a few nervy ones.

Estimated cars for to-morrow are 31 of wheat 467 of corn, and 117 of oats.

BALTIMORE, June 30.—Wheat—Western shade higher and closing easy; Southern red, 85@88c, do amber 88@90c; No. 1 Maryland 85⅛@85¾, No. 2 Western winter red spot, 82½@82¾c; July, 82½@83c, August, 82¾@83c; September 83⅜@83½c. Corn—Western quiet and steady; Western mixed spot, 44@44½; July, 44@44⅛c; August, 44⅛@44½c; steamer mixed, 39¾@39⅞c. Oats—Firm and quiet; Western white 37@39c; do mixed, 34@36c. Provisions steady and quiet; mess pork, $10.50@10.75 bulk meats, shoulders and clear rib sides packed, 6¼@6¾c; bacon shoulders, 6¾@7½c; clear rib sides, 7c; hams, 12½c; @12¾c. Lard—Refined, 7¼c. Butter firm; Western packed, 10@13c; creamery, 15@19c. Eggs steady at 12@12½c. Receipts—Flour, 2,151 bbls; wheat, 5,000 bu; corn, 28,000 bu; oats, 5,500 bu; rye, 100 bu. Shipments—Flour, 1,590 bbls; corn, 98,000 bu; wheat, 300,000 bu; corn, 4,000 bu.

Tried for Attempted Robbery.

Mike Martin is being tried in the Criminal Court to-day on a charge of attempted robbery in the first degree. He and a companion, it is chagred, knocked down E. C. Sanderson and attempted to rob him of a silver watch valued at $10.

Attacked On the Street.

E. L. Metcalf, of the Cole Brothers Commission Company, was attacked on Third and Olive streets this noon by George Gore and was severely beaten about the head. The quarrel was about wagers. No arrests were made.

PAN-ELECTRIC.

The Republican Representatives Report Their Opinions.

WASHINGTON, June 30.—The Pan-Electric Investigating Committee will submit to the House three reports. One report will be signed by Chairman Boyle and three other Democrats, another by four Republicans, and another by Mr. Hale, a Democrat. The Replicans' report is sharp and to the point. In it the testimony is cited to show how the Pan-Electric Company was organized and $3,5000,000 of its stock given to gentlemen for the use of their names and reputations. The opinion of Senator Garland, declaring that the Rogers patents do not infringe the Bell patent, is quoted, with the statement that it had been gotten because the Pan-Electric could not sell rights without it, and it was, as it was intended to be, the inducement which led large numbers of persons to pay in money, a part of which was divided among Mr. Garland and his associates. At the same time the Pan-Electric knew that their instruments did infringe the Bell patent. The report then refers to the postal telegraph bill, as explaining the motives of the Pan-Electric organizers, and states that $2,000,000 of the stock was held by members of Congress when it was expected that that bill would be a subject of legislation.

THE TRUE ISSUE.

"Taking all these things together," says the report, "it does not admit of doubt that the Solicitor General, acting as Attorney-General, was by some means led to grant this application to the [Department of Justice] without the usual reference or inquiry, without any pretence of competent examination, with unexampled speed, and in violation of the practice of the department. In an ordinary case such action would be held to be positive proof of fraud, at least proof of great negligence, which in a person of his position is equivalent to fraud. There is no reason why the rule should not be applied here. It cannot be forgotten that this request, granted in so extraordinary and so unbecoming a manner, was a request in which the head of the Department of Justice, and a Senator of the United States, came in person to the Solicitor-General to inquire about it, and seemingly urged speed, and other Government officials for two years had, and had notoriously had, a vast pecuniary interest.

"Upon these facts, no one of which can be disputed, no jury would hesitate. It is enough, however, to say that it cannot be tolerated that the business of the Government can be so conducted. It cannot escape observation that Senator Harris and Mr. Casey Young acted just as men would act if already assured of what was being asked; and that the conduct of the Solicitor-General is most easily accounted for on the assumption that he understood the matter in advance, and had predetermined upon his course of action."

COLD FACTS.

The report concludes: "There is good reason to believe, and we feel constrained to find, that in our judgment the proceedings would not have been asked or allowed, as they were, had it not been for the relations of the Pan-Electric Telephone Company with Government officials, and for the large interest therein especially held by the head of the Departmedt of Justice. The plea is that the parties concerned did not think they were doing wrong; but a Government which expects to be respected cannot permit such things to be done, such influences to be sought for, or such personal interests to exist and avail. It is not enough that those personally interested, who ought to have prevented it, say that they did nothing, and meant to do nothing."

TO ABATE A NUISANCE.

Delegate Keenan's Effort to Protect Good Neighborhoods.

A short time ago Delegate Pishon introduced an ordinance in the House of Delegates amendatory of section 6, article 2, chapter 25, revised ordinances of 1885, in relation to misdemeanors. The object of Mr. Pishon's ordinance was to amend the law under which the police have been compelling the removal of houses of bad repute from one neighborhood to another, so as to make it improper to arrest or prosecute keepers of such house for failure to comply with a request or an order to move. It is claimed that the constant changing of the inmates of such houses as are referred to above not infrequently brings them in contact with the residents of good neighborhoods in the western part of the city, which evil it is particularly desired to obviate. Since the introduction of Mr. Pishon's ordinance it has developed that press of business and an early adjournment of the House would have the effect of preventing its passage. Delegate Keenan, however, tried to come to the rescue by introducing a resolution which will answer the same purposes as the ordinance. The resolution urgently requested the Board of Police Commissioners to cease their efforts to drive the class of persons referred to from one place to another, for the reason that such practices accomplish no good and only serve to disseminate their evil influences throughout the city.

North St. Louis Items.

Judge Michael Heller, of the firm of Heller & Hoffman, went to Quincy to-day on a business trip.

A meeting will be held next Sunday night to organize an Orphans' Aid Society by the congregation of St. Patrick's Catholic Church.

The local Butchers' Union meets next Saturday night at the hall, St. Louis and Elliott avenues. The object of the meeting is to increase the numerical strength of the union.

H. G. Kerr, chief clerk of Heller & Hoffman's chair factory, is suffering seriously from the effects of having an iron rod run through his left thumb a few days ago.

Extremely Hard Up.

Between 2 and 3 o'clock this morning Officer Laycock saw two men carrying sacks on Talcot avenue and Benedict street, and when he approached they dropped them and ran. The officer gave chase and fired a couple of shots at them, but they made their escape. The sacks contained bones which had been stolen from a railroad car on Benedict street, near Talcot avenue, the bones being the property of Mr. Zeitz.

BASE BALL MASCOTS.

THE THINGS THAT BRING LUCK TO THE VARIOUS CLUBS.

The Mullane Investigation—The Browns Win Again—The Maroons Beaten—Troubadour's Triumph Over Miss Woodford—Game Gossip.

Gamblers and old women are not the only ones who are given to superstitious observations of signs and to the carrying of luck tokens and such allurements to the fickle goddess. Base ball players are more given to that sort of thing of late years than any other class of men, only their tastes run more in the direction of mascots, though with these latter horse-shoes divide a portion of the honors. There is not an organized club in the country that has not its horse-shoe either buried under the "lucky" part of the field or nailed up over some door where all the players have to pass under it on their way to the ball field. Four-leaved clover leads the long list of personal luck-bringers, but the mascot has become an almost necessary adjunct to the ball club that has any pretensions to honors on the ball field.

DIFFERENT KINDS OF MASCOTS.

The different clubs differ as widely in their mascottic tastes as do the different mascots in their luck-carrying prowess, but the players all and separately have an abiding faith in the good of mascots which are not made to order for a club, but are picked up in divers ways by the players, who, following some whim, conceive the idea that a certain person or thing will bring them luck. The Athletics evidently have no mascot just at present. They had one in the spring, it is said, in Ground Keeper John Ryan's spring lamb, but that lamb has grown into sheephood and has lost its luck-bearing powers, and through a culpable oversight of the management another has not been secured.

The Philadelphias have a mascot in the person of a previous kid, with gas enough to inflate a balloon, who sits next to the telegraph operator, just outside the press box, and keeps the entire reportorial force "cussing" by his chinning. He is a mascot, though, and when left undisturbed in the reserved seat paid for by a prominent lawyer of the city, the club never looses a game. If driven out of that seat his power as a luck-giver fails him and the club looses. He is frequently driven out. When the Metropolitan Club is at home at Staten Island Chief Roseman can hardly be prevailed upon to start the game until he rubs the heavy end of his bat on the wool-covered head of a little pickanninny who waits for him every day at the boat landing to be to be taken to St. George's Park. The rest of the team satisfy themselves with shaking hands with the little coon. The "Mets'" taste run largely to colored mascots. Last year they had one, and every day before the game commenced Roseman would imprint a kiss upon his wooly pate.

The Baltimores had for a mascot, in the early part of the season, a little black boy that John Manning picked up in the streets of Baltimore, but after a brief season of success and good luck the youngster turned up missing, and the Baltimores are to-day next to last in the championship race.

"YALLER" DOG MASCOTS.

Pittsburg has a yaller dog for a luck-finder, and when before the home game the dog is led over the field and around the bases the club is sure to win. Sometimes, however, his dogship gets indifferent and wanders off on an independent excursion and refuses to show up on the ball field, and the home team is sure to lose unless the visiting team refuses to allow them to.

"Kid" Baldwin's pink jersey was the luck drawer for the Cincinnati club, but a St. Louis laundry woman's daughter eloped in "Kid's" jersey and the club is now in last place. Besides the unfortunate loss of the jersey there is now said to be a "Jonah" in the team or connected with it which has offset all the mascots the club could obtain.

The Louisville club had for its lucky hanger-on a calf that was born with a caul just before the St. Louis team struck that town recently, and before the Browns left they had dropped five games out of six to the home club and their calf. Overconfidence in the playing abilities of the club caused the management to neglect putting the calf on the salary list, and the club now loses an occasional home game. The club does not carry an animated mascot with them on the trip, but "Pete" Browning (whose name, by the way, is said to be Lewis Rogers Browning, and not Pete) carries a loaded die in the hip pocket of his knickerbockers for luck. Before a recent game somebody took the die out of Pete's pocket and he failed to make a hit that day, a calamity which had not befallen him in thirty-two previous games.

WHY THE BROWNS WIN

There was an argument between Latham and Comiskey as to which would be the better mascot for the St. Louis Browns, a mule or a white mouse. Comiskey argued in favor of the mule, for which he has a kindly fellow feeling, and he said he knew where he could get one cheap. Latham held out for the mouse because he owned one and he won the day, though Comiskey still believed in the efficacy of the mule, and had his heel spikes made out of a cast-off shoe from the foot of his favorite animal. This fact, perhaps, explains a certain much-talked of propensity which attaches to Capt. Comiskey. Under the mascotship of the mouse the St. Louis won straight along while the mascot lived, but, to the misfortune of the team, the poor creature died of sulphuric suffocation during a wordy quarrel, which ended in a slugging match between Latham and Bushong. The loss of the mouse was severely felt when the club went to Louisville and lost all the games but one of the week. Comiskey's mule is now the authorized luck-producer.

A CHARM IN TOOTHLESSNESS.

The Chicagos have "Little Willie Hahn" for their mascot, and a good one he has been. This is his second season. Last year he pulled the Chicagos out of the final series with New York in good shape, but he was out of practice when he accompanied the team to Detroit, and succeeded in winning but one out of the three games for his club. He had the misfortune to be born without teeth and he was knocked out by Charley Gallagher, the Detroit mascot, whose mouth boasted of a full set of ivories when be played his first "bawl," seven years ago. The Detroit youngster was knocked out by the Chicago fortune-finder in the first game, but he settled down to his work on Monday and Tuesday and won both games. He was on hand again on Wednesday last, when the Philadelphias struck the "city of straights."

President Day of the New Yorks tore his hair the other day when he was informed that the youngster born with a full beard in Williamsburg had died. Day was sure that he would have in him one of the best mascots in the country. He has a mascot at present in the person of young Eitel, who holds himself in readiness to come West if sent for by Manager Mutrie. The Bostons never had a mascot because they haven't luck enough to find one. The Washington and Kansas City teams are unable to get a mascot to even look at them.

The strangest thing about a base ball mascot is that he is occasionally traitorous and transfers his services to the other side without the slightest warning. He will never play with a crippled, badly-managed or broken-up team, and as soon as a club begins to go down hill it is a clear case of desertion by the mascot.

TWICE WINNERS.

The Browns Down the Mets Again—The Maroons Beaten—Game Gossip.

The Browns won another game from the Mets yesterday by batting out three runs in the first inning, one in the second, and one in the ninth, leaving the Mets score at two made in the first and seventh innings. Cushman was hit for ten singles, but Caruthers held Roseman's warriors down to five scattering hits.

The Maroons succumbed easily to Stemmeyer, Boston's big phenomenon. He sent the balls at such a terrific pace that the king batters sized him up but four times and of these Jack Glasscock made three. Healy, a former wonder, was pounded for a total of 15 bases, but did good work in striking out seven Bostons. The final score was: Bostons, 11; Maroons, 4.

MULLANE'S TROUBLE.

The American Base Ball Association Investigating the Charges Against Him.

CINCINNATI, June 29.—The Board of Directors of the American Base Ball Association at noon to-day began an investigation of charges against Tony Mullane, pitcher for the Cincinnatis, published a short time ago by the Cincinnati Enquirer. The charges as contained in that paper were read. They are in brief, namely, that two men in Indianapolis, McMahon and Clayton, made affidavits they received each a letter from Mullane prior to a certain game at Brooklyn last year, telling them to bet everything on the Brooklyn Club. The Enquirer is not represented to support its charges and McMahon and Clayton are not here. Mullane's testimony will be taken first and then the evidence as to the standing and credibility of McMahon and Clayton will be presented.

The First Washington Game.

The Washingtons play the Maroons the first of a series of three games at Union Park to-morrow. They come fresh from their victory over Detroit. The batteries will probably be Shaw and Gilligan for Washington and Boyle and Myers for the Maroons. Game will be called at 4 p. m.

Game Gossip.

McKinnon ought to brace up in his playing. He is capable of doing first-class work at first.

The League has twenty-five postponed games to play off, while the Association has twenty-four.

The colored mascot which Kansas City had has been released. Let this end the mascot business.

Hen Boyle is pitching in fine form and in the Washington games he will probably show up better than ever.

Notwithstanding their position in the League race, the Maroons stand at least third in batting and fielding.

Last year Detroit didn't draw flies. This year Michigan, Ohio and Indiana attend in a body. Nothing succeeds like success.

The Carondelet Unions would like to hear from clubs for games either on July 4 or 5. Address Joe C. Ruga, Secretary, Broadway and Quincy streets, South St. Louis.

Larry Corcoran, who really won the championship for Chicago at least once, is now with the Washington team. He will probably pitch one of the Washington games here.

Luck clings to McCormick—pitching several losing games, and yet his club, by winning, nevertheless, keeps up Mac's great record. Verily it is better to be born lucky than rich.

Mr. Von de Ahe, accompanied by his attorney, Mr. Fauntleroy, left for Columbus, O., last night, determined to make a strong fight at the associating meeting against the latest fines of Comiskey.

Harry Wright's great Phillies, who so handsomely downed Chicago yesterday, will play the Maroons at Union Park on the celebration of the Fourth—morning and afternoon of the Fifth. They are running bases better than ever.

The Browns and Mets., and Maroons and Bostons are having it out at their respective parks this afternoon. The most interest attaches to the Boston-Maroon game since they are even in the series, having each won four, and nearly tied in the race for the flag.

Spalding drew three aces when he signed Flynn, Ryan and Moolic. He did not realize his luck at the time; neither did "Mikado" Anson; in fact the latter seemed to regard them as very little better than nine-spots until quite recently. There is no one prouder of their success than Tommy Burns, on whose recommendation they were secured.

The Papin Stars have organized for the season of 1886 with the following players: M. Oates, c. f.; T. Dwyer, p.; E. Hickey, 1b.; W. Dumphy, 2b; J. McGrath, 3b; P. Gannon, s.s; W. Rickoby, l. f.; D. ## WOODFORD WORSTED.

Troubadour Defeats the Famous Mare—Races at New York and Elsewhere.

At New York yesterday the race between Miss Woodford and Troubadour, a mile and a quarter, monopolized the attention and interest. In the books the betting was 9 to 10 on Woodford to $100 on Troubadour. When the horses appeared on the track McLaughlin was seen to be riding the mare and Fitzpatrick the colt. On the first attempt they were sent off with Troubadour slightly in the lead, which he steadily increased till after the second quarter was passed, when McLaughlin gradually cut down the daylight, and at the third quarter a blanket could have covered the flying pair. Here the Miss lost her gait, and in spite of her jockey's whipping would not respond, and Troubadour drew away inch by inch, passing under the wire amid a tempest of cheers, one length ahead, in the fast time of 2:08¾, just one second slower than the record.

The winners in the other events were: Three-fourths mile, Pontiac; seven-eighths mile, Refrain; three-fourths for 2-year-olds, Electricity; one and one-fourth, Aretino; one and an eighth, Herbert.

Other Races.

In the races at Chicago yesterday the winners were as follows: One and one-sixteenth miles, Jim Douglas; one mile, Clonee; five-eighths of a mile, Wary; one-mile heats, Billy Gilmore; steeplechase, Wellington.

At Kalamazoo, Mich., yesterday, the three-minute trot was won by Palo Alto, and the 2:24 race had Alert for a winner.

The race for the Seaton Delaval plate, for 2-year-olds, was won at New Castle, England, yesterday, by Anson's Lady Muncaster.

The Carnival Parade Committee organized Monday night with J. S. Rogers as Chairman and W. M. Brewster as Secretary. The prospects as outlined by the committee are good.

Hart, notwithstanding he has been declared uncontaminated, has been entered for the L. A. W. races at Chicago, Saturday, in connection with the meeting of the Illinois Division. Greenwood talks about entering to see what he can do with the Lake City racers.

The Bulletin, quoting from the POST-DISPATCH, says that the countenance given to Whittaker by the M. A. A. C. at the recent Union Park sports shows that the L. A. W. and the N. A. A. A. do not work together. The Bulletin evidently is not aware that a few days later the M. A. A. C. refused to send Whittaker to Pullman, Ill., as its representative, because he had been declared a professional by the L. A. W.

The Rambler's run called for Sunday is to Chicago. It is the intention to go up if possible Friday evening, attend the cycle races on Saturday, tour around Waukesha, Wis., Sunday, and return either Sunday night or stay over the 5th, a holiday. Capt. ## THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Powderly and the President Thereof Clear Up a Misunderstanding.

NEW YORK, June 29.—Under date of June 10 D. M. Stone, President of the Associated Press, wrote to General Master Workman Powderly calling his attention to charges said to have been made by him that the Associated Press had made unfair reports of the Cleveland Convention of the Knights of Labor. In his letter Mr. Stone says: "I had supposed every well-informed person in the country knew that the associated press and Jay Gould represented opposing interests that are so strongly antagonistic that they would not be likely to act in harmony on any subject, and certainly neither would do anything whatever upon the dictation of the other."

To this letter Mr. Powderly writes a lengthy reply, in which he practically reiterates the charges. He says he finds matter in many papers in the telegraphic news in which he is treated badly. He said of the seventeen papers: "Our papers had no special correspondents at Cleveland. They are served by the Associated Press with the news of the day. I find the dispatches sent them from Cleveland inaccurate; not only inaccurate, but well calculated to hold me up to ridicule as being treated with anything but respect by the convention."

Further on in his letter Mr. Powderly says: "Until the receipt of your letter I fully believed Mr. Gould was the controlling spirit in that institution. I am glad to learn from that such is not the case. I am pleased to out that 'the New York Associated Press Jay Gould represent opposing interests strongly antagonistic that they would no likely to act in harmony on any subject.' can assure you that what papers may say times in favor of Mr. Gould, no matter tho he has wealth unlimited at his command, h the most universally despised creature on American side of the Atlantic to-day. I sp from knowledge of the people, having ming among them, and I can in future read Associated Press dispatches with m pleasure, knowing Jay Gould does not c trol the wires over which they are sent. Si the receipt of your letter I have been inform that the Associated Press dispatches sent from Cleveland during the convention w published in the same columns with spe dispatches sent from that city during the ti we were in session. This accounts for mistake made by a number of those who cused the Associated Press of misrepresen tion."

THREE ARRESTS.

THE POLICE TAKE DECIDED ACTION IN THE EASTON AVENUE MYSTERY.

The Masserangs and Ernest Doepke, the Contractor, Taken Into Custody—An Examination of the Parties by the Coroner—The Saloon-Keeper Makes a Statement—Mrs. Masserang Hysterical—The Inquest Postponed Until To-Morrow.

At the request of Coroner Nidelet the police to-day arrested Joe Masserang and his wife at their place, No. 3838 Easton avenue, and Ernst Doepke at his house on Seventeenth and Carr streets. The prisoners are held to await the developments of an inquest which will be held on the bones found in a vault in the rear of Masserang's saloon. The police have been working on the case for nearly two weeks but have attained very unsatisfactory results. While the facts lead to very definite conclusions they cannot be established in a court of law with the evidence at hand. There is little doubt that a murder has been committed and a robbery and that the victim is August Entz, whose bones and clothing were found in Masserang's vault. The best evidence so far obtained is that contained in Mrs. Huber's affidavit concerning a conversation with Mrs. Masserang, who she claims told her last December that she and her husband had on the previous night taken a drunken man out of the saloon and put him on the floor of the vault to sleep at closing time.

When Mr. and Mrs. Masserang were taken to the Four Courts this morning they were taken to Coroner Nidelet's private office by Sergt. Keeble. Masserang was then taken to the office of Chief of Police, but was again returned to the Coroner's charge. Masserang and his wife were questioned at great length by Coroner Nidelet and Sergt. Keeble, but no damaging admissions were obtained. Ap- [illegible] greatly to his surprise.

ERNEST DOEPKE, THE CONTRACTOR

[illegible] cleaned out the vault, was arrested this [illegible] and locked up at the Four Courts. [illegible] by permission of the courteous [illegible] shortly after he was locked up. [illegible] now?" he asked when accosted. [illegible] know what I am locked up in [illegible]." The suggestion was ventured [illegible] probably locked up as an accessory [illegible] commission of murder, by con[illegible] that a crime had been [illegible] didn't conceal anything; I [illegible]." [illegible] shoes and clothing when [illegible] found in every vault, es[illegible] of a saloon. [illegible] crime to be [illegible] What's [illegible] didn't know [illegible] I heard [illegible]

now and I've never had anything like that happen to me."

"Why did you go out to Masserang's the next day after the police called on you in bed at your house?"

"I went out to ask him what that was all about, or rather, I went out there to get my money for doing the work, and then I asked him what it was all about. He said he didn't know."

"Had you found any bones?"

"No; not when we first stopped; but when this fellow, Masserang, or whatever his name is, called at my house Sunday I sent my men out there and they cleaned it out entirely and found the bones in the bottom. I don't see what they want to hold me for."

AT ONE O'CLOCK THIS AFTERNOON

Coroner Nidelet remanded Masserang and his wife to the hold-over, after taking a long statement from each. When asked if he had any statement to make concerning his arrest, he said: "I don't want to say anything until I give bond and get out of here." When it was explained that he could not give bond to-day as there was no charge made against him yet, he continued: "They can't have any such a charge as murder in the first degree against me. I didn't know that there was any body in that vault and I'm sure my wife didn't. It's all Doepke's fault; all of it. If he had just cleaned out that vault it would be all right. The first night he showed me the shoes with the bones in them was all I knew about it."

"Did he show you the shoes with bones in them?"

"Yes, but I didn't pay any attention to them. I went to bed. I told Doepke though if he didn't find everything right to just stop, and leave it alone. If he did stop and say nothing it would be all right, or if he did clean it out entirely it would be all right. It's his fault all this."

Except on this point, which is not an unimportant one, Masserang's story corroborated Doepke. This, however, seems to be a very important point on which they differ. The trio of prisoners were kept separated to-day, so as to prevent collusion. Masserang has retained Judge George Davis, whom he was anxious to see before making a statement of the facts further than given above.

was confined in a cell at the end of the hold-over, but was so overcome with grief that she could not or would not answer any question addressed to her. Her cries filled the corridor and interrupted her husband's conversation.

The facts so far discovered scarcely warrant any further proceeding against the parties, as the identification of the dead man cannot be established in court. An inquest will be held at 11 o'clock to-morrow morning.

THE IRISH DELEGATES.

ARRIVAL OF MESSRS. O'BRIEN, DEASY AND REDMOND IN NEW YORK.

Received by the Committee—The Welcome—Mr. O'Brien Talks About Home Rule and Coercion—Churchill Responsible for the Belfast Troubles.

NEW YORK, August 16.—The Irish delegates to the Chicago Irish National League Convention, Messrs. O'Brien, Deasy and Redmond, arrived from Europe on the steamer Servia this morning. The Servia was sighted off Sandy Hook at 3 a. m., but could not cross the Bar on account of the low tide until after 5 o'clock. The news of the steamer's arrival was received at the barge office shortly before 5 o'clock. Gen. Kerwin, M. D. Gallagher, Rev. George W. Pepper, Dr. T. O'Reilly, Edward Rowe, Rev. Fr. McKenna, P. J. Brennan and Michael Dwyer were the only members of the Reception Committee on hand owing to the early hour of the morning. They went on board of Commodore Sarin's fast steamboat, the Sam Sloan, accompanied by the reporters. The Sam Sloan steamed rapidly down the harbor to Quarantine Station. The Servia got under way shortly after 5 o'clock and crossing the bar, slowly steamed up to Quarantine Station. The Sloan put out from the station and drew alongside the huge Cunarder. Gen. Kerwin mounted the steps of the companion ladder of the Servia, followed by the committee and the reporters. The delegates were not on deck. They had awakened a few minutes earlier and soon emerged from their state-rooms and came on deck. A general hand-shaking ensued, and then the distinguished visitors were taken on board the Sam Sloan with their baggage and the boat headed for this city.

Gen. Kerwin then stepped forward and introduced, in a few well chosen words, the Rev. Geo. W. Pepper, who delivered a short speech of welcome. Mr. Wm. O'Brien responded for his colleagues. He said: "Gentlemen of the committee, for my friends and for myself, I will say that we are delighted to receive such a welcome and are not surprised at the warm greeting. It is nothing more than would be expected from the well-known hospitality of the American people. Never were our prospects so bright in the fight we are engaged in. We ask you to continue your support, for it is a fight for life. We will continue the movement as long as England refuses to grant home rule." Mr. O'Brien said he was much pleased with his reception on American soil, and thanked the committee on the part of Charles Stewart Parnell, whose unworthy embassadors they were. He referred in flattering terms to his codelegates, Messrs. Redmond and Deasy. Mr. John Redmond remarked that, after the eloquent words of his friend, it was not necessary to say much. "I am inclined to believe," continued Mr. Redmond, "that an Irish politician's education has not been completed until he has lived in America. The words of encouragement from your people have echoed across the ocean and revived hope at home. The prospect was never brighter before, nor was encouragement from this side ever more needed. The present opportunity must not be fooled away. We are determined to fight the battle until victory rests on our brows."

After the arrival of the party at the dock, carriages conveyed them to the Fifth Avenue Hotel. They expect to leave for Chicago at 6 o'clock to-night by the New York Central Railroad. In conversation with the reporters, Messrs. O'Brien and Redmond spoke guardedly. The former condemned Churchill's utterances as the direct cause of the Orange riots at Belfast and other places. "He told the Orangemen," said Mr. O'Brien, "that if they expected to be recognized by the English people, they must fight for it. His policy was backed up by Chamberlain both in his public speeches and his letters. The Orangemen took them at their word, and began rioting. Why, they might have been put down by two dozen policemen when the trouble began. But what could the latter do? They found themselves perfectly helpless. The authorities at Belfast were higher classes of Orangemen and kept them back. Any active work by individual members of the police was rewarded with black marks and often dismissal. Any attempt to arrest was followed by their being confined in the barracks. I do not think the Mayor of Belfast acted unfairly, but other officials used their best endeavors to stir up the Orangemen."

"Do you think that there will be any general strike against paying rent?" asked a reporter.

"I do not," replied Mr. O'Brien, "yet there is certain to be trouble, and that shortly. People last year endured their sufferings as best they could, hoping for relief. They expected relief from Gladstone's efforts in their behalf. That hope is at an end for this year. It is impossible now for them to pay rent. There is a strong probability that inside of three weeks there will be a spontaneous combustion. They will refuse to pay the exorbitant rents. It will eventually result in coercion, and wholesale evictions will follow. It is impossible to govern Ireland with coercion. The people are driven to the wall now. A year or two will end the struggle for ever. There will be a certain collapse of the Government on the Irish question inside of a year."

"What do you think of Lord Churchill's plan of local self-government by means of county boards?" said the reporter.

"Oh, that is not possible," replied the delegate; "it does not go far enough. The question is developing fast. I should say," continued Mr. O'Brien, "that Gladstone's own mind is developing rapidly on the question involved. Less than his measure is now impossible. More is certain."

KETCHUM CAUGHT.

The Police Officer in an Unpleasant and Puzzling Dilemma.

The cases of Police Officer Isaac Ketchum and companions, John Graham, William Smith, James Meben and Charles Jones, who were arrested about 1 o'clock Sunday morning playing poker in a saloon on the Gravois road by Detectives Herbert and Emmett, came up this morning in the First District Police Court. Gambling was the charge. They were asked if they were willing to plead guilty and pay a fine of costs and all agreed except Ketchum, who hesitated. When asked if he was willing to pay costs he at first was about to say he would not, but changed his mind and said: "I guess I will have to." He was very much broken up over the affair, as there was a dead case against him. If he pleaded guilty and paid costs, he could not deny his guilt when arraigned before the Police Board to-morrow for trial. On the other hand, if he went to trial he was sure to be convicted, and would have to pay a fine of $10 and would be in just as bad position when arraigned before the Board. It was not the fine of the Police Court, but the after-clap when brought before the Police Board that worried Ketchum. Although he has done some very good work, he has been before the Board before and there is little hope for him when brought up on this charge. He pleaded hard with the detectives, when arrested, to be let off, but they refused to show him any quarter and locked him up in the Second District station. Although they claim that they did not know he was an officer until he showed them his star and tried to get them to let him and his companions go, Ketchum's friends assert that the whole thing was a put up job to entrap him. They say that the detectives were informed by some enemy of the officer that he was in the habit of playing poker there on Saturday nights and that the raid was made for the purpose of capturing him. In support of this they point to the fact that the detectives selected this saloon in an out of the way place to raid when small games of this character are going on at saloons all over town.

The Jersey Central.

NEW YORK, August 16.—The Directors of the Jersey Central Road met to-day. There were present Messrs. Little, McKenzie, Jennery, Williams, Roosevelt and Kerins. President Little said that he was under instructions not to make any statements that other interests were involved and that it was the place of the other interests to state the result of the meeting. It was intimated by other officials of the road that the meeting was called for the purpose of ratifying the agreement with the Baltimore & Ohio which was recommended by the special committee and that they acted in accordance with the recommendation.

WHAT DO THEY WANT?

A Delegation of Kansas Grain Shippers Visit St. Louis.

On Saturday a party of Kansas men, delegates from the Kansas Grain Shippers' Association, which has just concluded a session at Beloit, were in the city and called upon Traffic Manager Newman of the Missouri Pacific. The delegation consisted of Wm. Denton, G. R. Washer, A. F. Rogers, W. H. Burke, G. C. Millier, O. B. Moore, C. E. Lathrop, J. H. Pinney, E. Wilkinson, C. F. M. Baker. They are all prominent grain men in Kansas, and well to do. The nature of their conference with Newman could not be learned, but grain men who knew of their presence came to the conclusion that they were trying to get such a rate with the Missouri Pacific as would allow them to ship the entire grain crop of Kansas into St. Louis. How this understanding was arrived at it is impossible to say. Mr. Newman refused to tell their mission; the members of the delegation were oyster-like in the firm shutting of their lips against revelation; and they did not ask, in any way, the co-operation of local merchants in securing favorable consideration for any plan they may have proposed to the railroad official. Reporters and grain men who talked with the delegates were alike discomfited and were alike thrown upon imagination in the absence of facts. The Shippers' Association is a strong organization which includes every big buyer in the State. It was organized in a small way two years ago, but the very low price of wheat has increased the necessity for such an organization, and its strength has been accumulating in the last five months.

"We do not know what the delegation wanted," said S. W. Cobb this morning. "They have not spoken to us; have not asked our aid, and really being so ignorant of their object we do not know that we could have been of any use at all. I knew that grain men in Kansas regard St. Louis as their natural market, and would like to come here, but these men who were here Saturday night, for all we know, have been trying to get a rate to Chicago, Toledo, New York or anywhere but St. Louis. If they want a low rate to St. Louis we want them to have it, and I am in favor of doing all we can to get it. We want to do all we can to increase the prominence of St. Louis as a grain market."

"Suppose a variable rate such as Reynolds Brothers of Toledo have on the Wabash, could be obtained on the Missouri Pacific to St. Louis?"

"It would be the greatest thing for this market that ever occurred. If St. Louis merchants could obtain such a rate—" and failing in words to express himself, Mr Cobb fell to devouring the fan that had been agitating the hot air for some moments.

"That Reynolds rate," he said at length, "is something I never could understand. I was the first man who tried to work up business in Kansas when the State was first opened up by the railroads. I have as large a Kansas acquaintance as any man in the business, but when I find one of Reynolds' buyers in a district, I get out. I can't do business in competition with him. Whatever I offer I find he is ready to give from ¼c to ½c more. He gets no more for his wheat than I do, and the only way I can see that he can make that ¼c or ½c back is on the freight. It has been said that he made the difference by mixing his wheat, but I don't believe that, though it might be done. It is only on the Wabash that he is such a power. We seldom find him away from that system and when he does go off on the other roads he manages to ship so that the longest haul is over the Wabash. It would be a God-send to St. Louis if our merchants could get such a rate."

"Do you think the Kansas delegation was after an Eastern rate?"

"No; I think they wanted the rate to St. Louis cheapened. They would rather come here than go to any other point. With a lower rate we could compete with even Chicago in whose favor the railroads are always discriminating. Freight rates must come down any way, and it's to the interest of the producer really that they should be lowered. With wheat at 75 cents and corn at 30 cents the freight rates are just as high as when wheat was $1 and $1.25 and corn was 50 cents. That lessens the price paid the producer beyond the difference in the market values of the produce. The Shippers' Association is able to secure such a rate, I think, easier than we could secure it. Railroads are more inclined to favor shippers than receivers."

EAST-BOUND FREIGHT RATES.

The Railway Officials Deny the Cut on Trunk Line Points—Notes.

It is pretty generally conceded that east-bound freight rates are being quietly shaved to a few favorite shippers. In fact there are five large shippers who are being favored with a cut ranging from 3 cents per 100 pounds to 9 cents. They won't tell which line is cutting for them, and the general freight agents or their representatives won't give the snap away. The most positive denial of the charge of cutting was made by Assistant G. F. A. Taylor of the Vandalia this morning. He offers to present a suit of clothes to anyone who can show where his line has made a cut. He don't deny that interior rates are being tampered with, but insists that trunk line points are not in the least disturbed.

Col. Jos. Hill, General Superintendent of the Vandalia Line, returned from an Eastern trip this morning. He states that the outlook for a good west-bound business this fall is very fair and but for the drouth a perfect boom would have been experienced the rest of this year and next spring.

A. Gould, Purchasing Agent of the Missouri Pacific, returned from New York this morning looking well.

A car-load of Knights Templar decorations for the triennial conclave will arrive here within ten days or two weeks from California. There is over $60,000 worth of the material.

John J. Rogers, formerly general freight agent of the Iron Mountain, arrived in the city this morning. He has quit the cotton-seed oil business and will probably go back to railroading again.

S. Ford, of Col. H. M. Hoxie's office, and wife, and C. H. Howard, foreman of the Pacific shops, leave to-morrow for the East on a summer trip.

TRIENNIAL SUBSCRIPTIONS.

Collecting Money for the Conclave—Parade Arrangements.

The Triennial Conclave Committee is engaged at present in getting in subscriptions to the conclave fund. The commanderies throughout the State have all subscribed liberally. The largest commandery subscription thus far is that of St. Aldemar Commandery of this city—$500. The largest subscription ouside of the city is $250. It is understood, however, that Springfield Commandery has collected $10 from each of its members, and will send on more than $500 as its share. The smallest commandery subscription is $10. Individual subscriptions run from $10 to $200. They have to be scaled down a little, however, for many individuals subscribe more than they are afterward able to pay.

The line of march has not been fully determined. Most of the Knights want it to be as short as possible, but it is impossible to make it very short with the number of men who will be in line. The details of the parade will be arranged Wednesday evening, when the Military Committee holds a [illegible]

THE FIRST DISCOVERY OF PETROLEUM IN FRANCE.

Gen. Boulanger Prohibits the Publication of a Scandalous Pamphlet—The Trouble at Belfast—Reprisals Feared—The Ministry Visit the Queen at Belfast—Foreign News.

LONDON, August 16.—The Times again censures the Protestants of Belfast for their refusal to submit to the authorities. Referring to the report that Lord Randolph Churchill is preparing an Irish measure, the Times says he will have a long and arduous task. The nature of the local government proposed must depend in some degree upon the attitude of the Irish people and possibly upon the action of the Irish convention at Chicago. But it is quite certain that nothing like a statutory parliament will enter into Lord Randolph's scheme, and the development of county government on an elective system will be applied on the same principles to all parts of the Kingdom.

THE QUEEN'S SPEECH.

The Queen held a council this morning, at Osborne Castle, with the members of the Ministry. The terms of the Queen's speech to be read at the reassembling of Parliament were agreed upon. Lord Salisbury returned to London after the council.

REPRISALS FEARED.

A man named Jackson who was wounded in Sunday morning's riot is dead. The other wounded men progress favorably. There was some stone throwing last night, but no one was seriously injured. There are ominous signs that the authorities fear attempts at reprisals to-night on the part of the mobs. Public houses are being closed and other precautions are being taken. Scores of prisoners have been sent to Kilmainham Jail, at Dublin, to await trial, the local jails being full.

The Transfer Railroad Tracks May Cross the Iron Mountain Free of Cost.

J. B. Moulton, Jerome Hill and Nelson W. Cameron, Commissioners appointed by the court to report in the case of the Transfer Railway crossings of the Iron Mountain tracks in the South and, filed their report this afternoon. On Rutger street the Commissioners find that the railroad crossing to connect the track of the Transfer Road with the levee track of the Iron Mountain Road on the wharf near the foot of Rutger street should be placed within ten feet of either the north or south lines of the street in such manner that no part of the crossing or lead bars shall be opposite the end of the street. On Almond street the tracks should be placed within ten feet of the street produced eastwardly toward the river but not to be opposite the eastern end of the street. On Trudeau street the crossing should be placed on the public wharf between 250 and 300 feet south of the south line of Trudeau street. This crossing applies only to the west track of the transfer road. The east track should occupy the wild track portion of the wharf for about 250 feet.

The Commissioners find that the making of the crossings shall be at the east of the Transfer Company and for their use by the company they shall maintain and keep them in order as long as this comyany shall use them and there shall be no unnecessary interruption in the movements of Iron Mountain trains during the construction.

The Commissioners do not find sufficient cause to impose upon the Transfer Company the payment of money or to make any other consideration to the Iron Mountain Company for crossing their tracks or for using such crossing.

FOSTER FINISHING.

Argument in the Anarchists' Trial Continued To-Day—The Court-Room Crowded.

CHICAGO, August 16.—The closing week of the great anarchist trial opened this morning, insufferably hot, with scarcely a breath of fresh air in the court-room. Every inch of space within the four walls was occupied by spectators. Mr. Forster resumed his speech this morning, by declaring that he was not there to defend anarchy. When he expressed that sentiment Saturday, he expressed the sentiment of his associates. The verdict ought not to be based upon the statements of any counsel. This assertion was made with apparently the view of undoing the effect of the statements made by Mr. Salomon in his opening. As to Spies and his utterances, Mr. Forster quoted the old adage "that a barking dog never bites." Spies never concealed his sentiments; they were made public time and again through the press. The man was talkative. That could not be disputed. There must be something in the construction of the man's brain which made him give utterance to his wild talk. The man loved notoriety, that was all.

Mr. Foster continued to argue that the testimony given on behalf of the State to show that Spies was concerned personally in a conspiracy on the night of the Haymarket attack was improbable, and claimed that it had been positively shown that the other defendants were near the wagon when the bomb was thrown. The court adjourned at 1 o'clock before Mr. Foster had concluded his speech.

STRUCK FOR BACK PAY.

The Employes of the St. Louis Coffin Company Go Out This Morning.

The employes of the St. Louis Coffin Company in the finishing department struck this morning and presented the following demand upon the manager:

Mr. Henry Hollrah.

DEAR SIR: We, the undersigned finishers of the St. Louis Coffin Company, do hereby demand a full settlement of our wages up to the 14th inst., by 9 a. m. to-morrow. Otherwise we shall proceed to collect the same by legal means.

CHAS. DAVIS,
FRANK GRAHAM,
FRED MEYER,
Committee.

St. Louis, Mo., August 16, 1886.

The members of the committee allege that the company is a month and a half behind in their wages and that they have been so for the past six years. Two years ago a strike was inaugurated for back pay and was successful, but the company immediately dropped back to its old tardiness in the matter of pay.

Mr. Hollrah, the manager, when seen by a reporter said that Saturday was the regular monthly pay day, but owing to the slowness of collections the company were not prepared to pay on that day without borrowing. The employes were paid by the month and since Saturday is all the Company is in arrears. The action of the men was unexpected. A meeting was appointed with them for this afternoon, when all would be adjusted.

KILLED AT PLAY.

Henry Kuntz Dies from Injuries Inflicted by Henry Johnson.

Henry Kuntz, a lad 17 years old, died at the residence of his mother, 2222 Gaines street, at 9 o'clock last night. His death was caused by internal injuries received on Friday evening. He was "skylarking" with Henry Johnson, a boarder in his home. Johnson is a teamster, 24 years old and very powerful. Their play grew boisterous and Johnson threw an old shoe at Kuntz hitting him in the breast. Although the blow was painful Kuntz did not think he was seriously injured. He became very ill yesterday, and died as stated. Johnson was arrested and is locked up at the Second District station, but the officers do not believe that his share in the death of his friend was any fault, but that the injury was inflicted in play. The Coroner's investigation will probably result in his release.

RULED OFF THE TRACK.

The Horse Billy Neuroth Debarred by the Gentlemen's Driving Club.

At a meeting of the officers of the Gentlemen's Driving Club, held at noon to-day, the bay horse Billy Neuroth, alias Carbeau, winner of the match race on Saturday, together with his owner or owners, was suspended from all further participation in matinees given by the Gentlemen's Driving Club, the officers of the club being satisfied that he was entered under a false name for the purpose of misleading the public and skinning the lambs. It now remains for the officers of the Fair Association Horse Department to take up the matter and rule the horse and his owners off all association tracks. The horsemen are interested in stopping all crookedness at once.

BROKE THE CHARM.

Lorenz Donnelly Lacerates the Feelings of a Mongolian.

Lorenz Donnelly was tried in the Court of Criminal Correction to-day for assaulting Chang Scoung, a Chinaman living at No. 1100 Park avenue. It appeared from the testimony that they had some words, and that the Chinaman called Donnelly a vile name. The latter then slapped him on the wrist, breaking a bracelet which Chang had on. It was only a light blow and did not hurt the Mongolian, and he would not have prosecuted had not Donnelly broke the bracelet, which it appears was a charm. It was a very handsome affair made of something akin to amber, and, according to a Chinese superstition, brings good luck to the wearer but if ever lost or broken, the owner suffers a reverse of fortune and instead of good luck suffers all sorts of ill-fortune. Donnelly was discharged.
